Contract offer declared dead

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington teachers were told last week, in no uncertain terms, the contract offer that originally guaranteed no layoffs and promised future pay raises in exchange for a one year salary freeze was no longer valid.

The school committee voted four to three on Wednesday to officially withdraw its offer following a plea by Supt. William Fay to "crystalize" the staff situation for the year ahead. The offer had been unofficially removed from consideration in June when the board riffed 23 teachers and other personnel.

Fay said with the loss of the teachers and 51 upcoming transfers throughout the system, officials are looking at "the most chaotic (school) opening probably we've ever seen." He asked the committee for a firm decision on the layoffs so administrators can schedule classes for September.

What prompted Fay's request was a letter from the Wilmington Teachers' Association which was received last week by Chairman Aldo Caira. The letter informed the committee WTA members would meet on September 3 to consider the amended contract. Committeemen seemed puzzled by the letter and maintained that it came too late since the seven percent raises had already kicked in and teachers had already been laid off. In addition, Dr. Shirley Callan noted it was their attorney's impression that the contract offer was already off the table.

"What's done is done," stated Andrea Paglia.

"The Wilmington Teachers' Association had plenty of time to get back to us. That offer is dead," said Peggy Kane.

Phil Fenton felt the board shouldn't be so hasty. He said he was concerned about how students will fare in September, especially with fewer teachers and larger classes.

"We've got some real problems here. I almost feel like we're biting off our nose to spite our face," Fenton said.

John DeMarco pointed out it was unfair to expect administrators to wait until September for an decision from the WTA. He motioned that the board give the union until August 7 to call a membership meeting and vote on the amended contract. Only Fenton went along with DeMarco's motion. A second motion to withdraw the offer and make the contract invalid passed in a four to three vote.The board next directed Fay to prepare student schedules based on 21 less teachers.

In related business the board rehired three teachers and hired one new person for a one year special education position. That position will reportedly be paid for with a grant. Those rehired were WTA President John Wood, who will replace retiring science instructor Georgia Dadoly; Joan Connelly, who will fill a vacancy left by elementary teacher Maureen O"Hara; and Michael Donovan, who was rehired as a part time teacher in music.

Directors hang on to their positions

by Arlene Surprenant

A move to once again eliminate three directors' positions in the Wilmington School System failed Wednesday in a four to three vote of the school committee. The board originally cut the director of athletics, the reading director, and the performing and fine arts director in order to replace them with supervisors having teaching responsibilities. Last month, the directors were reinstated when committeemen were informed it would be less costly to keep them.

At Wednesday's meeting, Peggy Kane motioned to reconsider the directors' positions after her board voted unanimously to convert seven department chairmen to program supervisors for grades six through twelve. The supervisors will each teach five classes. It was recommended earlier the directors each teach two classes.

Kane argued it was redundant to keep directors who would have responsibilities similar to the new supervisors. She maintained a savings would be realized by eliminating the directors, especially in the area of travel expenses and secretarial help. Kane suggested any extra funds go to the curriculum committee or towards additional buses.

Bob Peterson and John DeMarco argued in favor of keeping the directors. They said eliminating the positions would not be cost effective, especially since the committee would have to pay stipends to cover extra work now picked up by the three administrators. In addition, said DeMarco, the directors oversee programs from kindergarten through the twelfth grade.

"No one has shown me they can save any substantial money," added Peterson.

Kane questioned what direct services the directors are providing for their base salary of $40,000.

Supt. William Fay explained, while supervisors will work a day consistent with the teaching staff, the directors work longer hours including some holidays and a longer year.

Dr. Shirley Callan said she had concerns for the long term impact if the board retains the directors.

"Where is this going to stop?" she asked, referring to the higher salary commanded by the directors. She pointed out that the directors are currently paid between $252 and $284 a day. She maintained that "somewhere we have to cut back or we'll lose more classroom teachers."

Andrea Paglia, Kane, and Callan voted to eliminate the positions. The motion went down in defeat.

Fun on the monkey bars

Monkey bars don't usually attract girls, unless there's a photographer nearby. Eager to have their photo taken at the Rec. Dept. playground, nine girls climbed onto the bars. They were Kelly McGrath, Jill Murray, Lynn Murray, Jessica Jackson, Nicole Zarella, Kristen Bruno, Elizabeth Dorrance, Erin McDonough.

Town licks ice cream vendor's complaint

The Town of Wilmington has won a case brought by an ice cream vendor who claimed that the town violated a law in seeking proposals for selling ice cream at the town beach.

Tina Maynard of Sunny Day Ice Cream had charged that the town violated the state Uniform Procurement Act. She had gone to court last month and secured an injunction against the town interfering with her ice cream business.

In a decision issued on Thursday, Judge George O'Toole of the Lowell Superior Court ruled that the town had not violated the law because the law did not apply to the instance at hand.

The town had sold an exclusive franchise to sell ice cream at the town beach to Michelle's Ice Cream. The business is owned by the Ciaramaglia family, who paid $2000 for a one-year franchise.

The matter began two years ago when the two ice cream vendors started competing for the ice cream business at the beach. The scene became quite nasty, with verbal exchanges and complaints of coffee being thrown.

In an effort to control the situation and generate some income for the town, Town Manager Michael Caira last year asked that vendors pay $1000 for the right to sell at the beach. Michelle's paid, Maynard did not.

This year, the town sent out an invitation to bid on the right to sell at the beach. The invitation was sent to all vendors who had a town hawkers and peddlers license, and to everyone who paid the 1990 fee. This list, however, only had three persons on it, all members of the Ciaramaglia family, since Maynard had declined to bid the previous year and did not hold a town license. She cites a state law in claiming she does not need a town license.

Maynard charged that the town did not solicit bids from an adequate number of vendors, since all three vendors solicited were under the same business, Michelle's.

On July 2, she was granted a preliminary injunction and then an extension, barring town officials from interfering with her selling ice cream. That injunction is now void, superceded by the ruling.

Judge O'Toole ruled that the law cited applied to contracts for procurement of supplies, services or real property by a governmental body. The town did not procure any supply or service, did not spend any money and has not acquired anything.

The judge therefore dismissed the complaint.

Local firms key to program's fate

by Arlene Surprenant

The Wilmington Business/School Partnership may remain an integral part of the school program next year, provided the superintendent of schools can work something out with local businesses committed to the concept.

The program was placed in jeopardy in the spring when the school committee voted to eliminate Al Fessenden's position in the system. Fessenden had been employed as a social studies teacher as well as head of the work study program and coordinator of the partnership.

Last month, Supt. William Fay said it was his understanding the committee only cut the position and not the entire partnership program. He suggested, because of the "tangible benefits" derived from that program, Fessenden remain and teach only two classes and divide the rest of his day between work study and the partnership. A majority vote allowed Fay to seek alternative ways to retain the business/school program without a negative impact on the school budget.

At last Wednesday's meeting, Fay said his original suggestion with the coordinator teaching two classes was still the most workable solution. In lieu of that, he said he would be willing to see if local firms would underwrite the cost of a stipend for the coordinator's position.

Peggy Kane stressed the importance of not dropping any social studies classes in order to have Fessenden fulfill his other duties. Fay said it would be impossible to expect Fessenden to teach more than three classes if he is overseeing the other programs. He added three classes could be absorbed into other social studies sections.

Committeeman Bob Peterson suggested the companies might be willing to pay the cost of a part time social studies teacher so no classes are lost and Fessenden won't be burdened with more than two classes.

"I would be willing to actively support this," said Fay.

The board voted unanimously to table the issue until the superintendent had a chance to discuss the idea with the business sector. Dr. Shirley Callan commended the companies for their willingness to stay with the partnership and help out during the school's budget crisis.

'Always leave 'em with a smile'

"Laughter is great therapy" says Julio Baptiste of Wilmington. Julio has been at Spaulding Rehabilitation Hospital in Boston for the past three months. The former traveling salesman and Spaulding volunteer has been recovering from a stroke he suffered in May. Despite his serious condition, Julio has not lost his sense of humor. In fact, humor has served as an outlet for him during this difficult time. Instead of dwelling on his misfortune, he has focused his energy on the lighter side of life. He tries to make everyone's day a little bit more enjoyable by telling a quick joke. "I have a thousand one liners," Julio explains.

Julio's positive outlook is quite remarkable considering the fact that he is no stranger to suffering. Three years ago he was admitted to Spaulding after a battle with congestive heart disease. He spent three months recovering. A short time after his discharge, he returned to Spaulding to help as a volunteer.

Julio has performed numerous jobs such as working on the Pediatric Walkathon and delivering odds and ends to patients. Julio chose to volunteer at Spaulding because he was so pleased with the care he received there. "The doctors, nurses, and therapists give 1000 percent of their attitudes and care. They were so good to me when I was there."

When Julio returned as an inpatient, he felt even closer to the staff. "When I came back they said, 'We've got a V.I.P. in here.' It makes you feel good to know people care about you."

In spite of the bad luck that has plagued him, Julio's attitude has remained positive. "Always leave 'em with a smile. That's my philosophy." A philosophy which suites him well and has helped all of "his" patients in the hospital. His friends at Spaulding are convinced that his sense of humor and courage will continue to help him in his recovery efforts at home.

Guidance director receives commendation

by Arlene Surprenant

A Wilmington guidance counselor has been commended by the Massachusetts School Counselors Association for her two years work on the Comprehensive Developmental Guidance and Counseling Curriculum Guide.

Florence Athanasia, Director of Guidance at Wilmington High School, recently worked on the guide, which is being used throughout the state and in graduate counselor education programs in several colleges.

In a July 22 letter to School Superintendent William Fay, association president Joan Hefner praised Athanasia as "a person with a strong sense of values and a high degree of moral integrity." She called Athanasia's research and contribution to her profession "outstanding."

Beating summer allergies

If you're one of the 20,000,000 Americans who suffer from allergies, it's difficult to enjoy the summer months when you're sniffling and sneezing your way through them.

Fortunately, there are some ways that allergy suffers can keep allergy symptoms at bay. For instance, keep the bedroom windows closed at night and turn on the air conditioner. Minimize activities during the early morning hours (5 to 10 a.m.), drive with your car windows closed and avoid cutting the lawn and raking leaves. Such activities stir up clouds of pollen and mold. When simple measures such as these fail certain over-the-counter antihistamines and decongestants may provide temporary relief. Find out more about the symptoms and treatments for summer time allergies.

New kindergarten session at Abundant Life Christian School

The Abundant Life Christian School in Wilmington is pursuing offering two kindergarten sessions for the 1991-92 school year. Each session will comprise two full days and one half day. The anticipated move is due to excellent enrollment figures. "One of our goals has always been to offer children the best possible environment in which to learn academically and to flourish socially, physically and spiritually," said new school administrator, Mrs. Patti Hobart. "Our student-teacher ratios in kindergarten through eighth grade enable our staff to encourage the abilities and character of each of our students. New families enrolling throughout the grade school are excited to know their children are nurtured as unique individuals at Abundant Life."

Another plus for busy parents is the Alternate Day Care Program. Kindergarten children needing care on the days during which they do not attend kindergarten are provided with that care right at Abundant Life. Mrs.Hobart stated, "As I interview the parents of our kindergarten children, they are relieved to know they don't have to juggle their schedules one more time to arrange for "other day" or "after school" care. This fits right in with our philosophy of providing support for families where they need it most. We offer a quality academic education and a caring Christian environment for the children - peace of mind for the parents."

Calls from local families regarding a community need for an after school care program for older grade school children prompted Abundant Life to begin its Extended Day Program for students in grades one through five last year. Extended Day care will be offered again this year. Children from surrounding communities, as well as Abundant Life, will participate in the program which provides supervised homework time, crafts, cooking, music, indoor and outdoor play and more. Reasonable rates attract families looking for quality care without having to add tremendous expense to their budgets.

The Abundant Life Christian School is located on Boutwell Street, off Route 62 in Wilmington. For more information about any of the programs offered at Abundant Life, contact Mrs. Hobart, Monday through Friday, at (508) 657-8710.

It's YOUR Money

CHARITABLE BEQUESTS

If you want to give a gift to your alma mater, or to any other charity, there are a number of ways to go about it.

Simplest of all is an outright bequest in your will to the organization, giving a certain amount of money or property. Your estate gets a deduction for the full fair-market value of the gift.

If you want to provide for loved ones during their lifetime, you can set up a testamentary charitable remainder trust or gift annuity. This usually provides an income to a surviving spouse or other beneficiary; at that persons' death, the remainder goes to the charity. The tax advantages to the estate depend on various factors.

Of course, you don't have to die to set up these funds and get tax benefits from them. A charitable remainder trust can be structured to support the donor and/or certain survivors while they live, the remainder going to the college or charity after they die. These tax deductions go directly to the donor, not his estate.

Six firms submit plans for sewer treatment plant

Six engineering firms have submitted proposals to the Wilmington Water & Sewer Department, saying in effect that they would like to do a feasibility study for the engineering and planning of an independent sewer treatment plant for Wilmington, to be located off Eames Street.

The letters were received in the latter part of July. The commissioners discussed some of the problems involved in their August first meeting. No individual proposls were discussed.

Wilmington is paying for sewer treatment according to its population, not according to the services received. The tab for FY 92 is $1,092,495. At this time there are about 600 residential, commercial and industrial users in Wilmington. The septage from these users joins the sewer mains of the Masschustts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) at the Woburn/ Wilmington line, and is taken to the Deer Island plant in Boston Harbor.

The Boston DPW costs (annual) at this time for this part of the operation is less than half a million dollars a year. The projected cost of the MWRA improvements will shortly be over $3 million a year, and are increasing rapidly, because of the clean up of Boston Harbor. Costs are frequently discussed in the Boston papers, and by the year 2,000 are expected to be over $13 million a year. Wilmington and other communities will be expected to contribute toward the payment of these costs.

Among the items discussed by the Wilmington commissioners on August first was the cost of the prospective bidding of the six firms. The bidding would be expensive, the commissioners felt, for five of the six firms — the ones that did not get the bid.

The individual firms would be spending about $10,000 each, they felt, in the preparation of the engineering, technical and legal aspects of the bids. It would take more than a few pages to discuss properly the complex problems. One estimate was that each of the firms would be used up to 30 pages, in submitting its bids. It would take more than a few pages to discuss properly the complex problems. One estimate was that each of the firms would be using up to 30 pages, in submitting its bid.

There could possibly be a financial improvement for some of the firms, if they could withdraw from the bidding. If three firms should withdraw, the bidding competition might end among the firms which would probably be nearest to getting the bid.

Then, along with the competition of the bidding, the commissioners could have individual meetings with the competing firms. Those meetings, the board felt, would not be held until sometime in September, at the earliest.

If three of the firms should withdraw, for good reason, they would be saving money, and the final decision of the commissioners could be from among the three remaining firms. There might be more discussion on that subject.

During the August first discussion Commissioner Ring noted with some pleasure that the selectmen of Stoneham seem to have taken note of the Wilmington proposal, and to have directed the sewer department of that town to follow, if possible, the Wilmington example.

State gives commitment on Route 93 connector

After many years of planning and discussion, the proposal for an interchange on Route 93 near the Woburn-Wilmington line is being given a green light. The mayor of Woburn recently received a letter from the Mass. Dept. of Public Works, notifying him of the department's formal commitment to moving forward with the $9 million project.

The letter was reported in the Tuesday Daily Times-Chronicle.

The interchange would link the Woburn industrial park to I-93, providing much-needed relief for the 128-93 interchange. The interchange is also seen as providing some relief for the Route 129 ramp in Wilmington. It would connect to Commerce Way in Woburn, a road which runs north from Mishuam Road.

The project is planned in three phases. The first would be preliminary engineering and environmental report, worth about $575,000. Second would be final design, for about $800,000.

The third phase would be construction, which would take about 15 months.

There is to be some private-sector participation in the building of the road connecting to Commerce Way. There will also be a grant from the state, with no city funds used.

Former planner praised

The Wilmington Planning Board recently expressed appreciation to former member David Clark for his leadership during his two years as chairman.

Clark, who served a total of five years on the board, stepped down this year. In a letter dated August 2, current Chairman Richard Longo told Clark "in addition to the many long hours and difficult issues which became a routine part of your duties, you always supplied a steadying hand." He concluded by wishing Clark "the best in your retirement."

Attorney general approves town meeting articles

Wilmington Town Clerk Patty Ward has received notification from the state attorney general's office of the approval of articles voted in the annual town meeting on April 27. The approvals cover changes in the town by-laws, zoning by-laws and zoning map. They are now if effect.

By-law changes:

Article 13, changes the Council on Aging to the Elderly Services Commission. Assistant AG Anthony Penski wrote that the commission remains the same in its rights, duties and obligations, in spite of its name change. The members of the Council would remain in office until the expiration of their term unless otherwise removed in accordance with law.

Mrs. Ward said that the last sentence meant the selectmen or town manager had to notify the members of the Council that their positions were being terminated. She said this had been done.

Article 14 changes the starting time for the annual town meeting to 10:30 a.m. The town meeting is held on the fourth Saturday in April.

Article 16 establishes a by-law regulating solicitors and canvassers going door-to-door.

Article 21 lifts the moratorium on the sale of town-owned land and establishes a process for disposition of town property.

Article 39 changes the by-law on political signs. Signs of up to six square feet are now allowed in yards, but must be set back 25 feet from the street, one sign per yard. Signs of the same size are also allowed on registered motor vehicles. Signs may be put out 45 days prior to an election and must be removed within three days after the election.

Zoning by-law changes:

Article 36 adds sandwich shops as an allowed use in a GB (general business) district.

Article 37 allows residents to park motor homes in yards.

Zoning map changes :

Article 29 rezones the Corey property from industrial to R-60 residential. The property is listed as being on Ainsworth Road, and is located off Route 125 in North Wilmington.

Article 32 rezones from industrial to R-20 a lot on Denault Drive. The property abuts the Avco (Textron) property and is located off Brentwood Avenue.

frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

We live in a decade when every problem we can't solve is rationalized by targeting something, anything, as the problem's cause. Case in point, guns and crime. On the issue of crime we scream "can't" every chance we get and extend a panacea to the crime-weary public, which is gun control. Get rid of the guns, you get rid of the crime. On the surface, a nifty bandwagon piece for any aspiring pol, not be bothered with the complicated programs of increasing police budgets and purging the old-boy judiciary handing out lenient sentences.

Gun control is alive and well in nearby Chelmsford, and making inroads in other jurisdictions.

Personal protection not enough

For your attention, the already published account of Hans Riemer, a Chelmsford businessman who was denied a gun permit for "all lawful purposes" and instead offered the "B" rating permit for target shooting and hunting. The difference is that the first classification allows the qualified citizen to carry a handgun at all times, whereas the second is more restrictive, permitting gun ownership for sporting use only.

Riemer was conscientious. Wanting a gun for personal safety concerns, he went so far as to enroll in a safety course, only to be denied his constitutional rights by Chelmsford Police Chief Joseph Connell. Connell's Constitution was purchased at a K-Mart no doubt, missing one of the vital parts called the Second Amendment.

Riemer subsequently hauled the chief into court but obtained little sympathy from the judge. Had Riemer been a criminal, today's Massachusetts judiciary may have been plenty sympathetic and accomodating. In the moments while Riemer was treated like a criminal, plently of criminals were probably adding to their stockpile of illegal weaponry. This is yet another case for electing judges in the Bay State.

A new trend affecting private ownership of guns

Increasingly, Massachusetts chiefs of police, unsettled by the liability that police departments can actually be sued by those injured by licensed gun owners, are putting the brakes on the "protection of life and property" permits, once generously issued and still coveted by gun enthusiasts. The bottom line here is that not everyone wanting a gun simply for protection will be allowed, even when they pass the mandatory criminal background check.

The dangerous trend evident in this case is that local constabularies have succumb to the myth that the less guns permitted, the less crime.

Wrong.

Chiefs of police have nearly full discretion

It's amazing to see the steady erosion of constitutional rights vis a vis the private ownership of guns. Massaschusetts already has a near flawless registration process prerequisite for gun ownership, whereby any citizen applicant must be fingerprinted, photographed and checked for criminal background. The hazy part is where chiefs of police comes in. They are lawfully allowed to have the final say and this is where most of the infringing takes place.

While the infringement charges are gaining publicity in Chelmsford no such controversy has been noted in Wilmington, where the chief of police enjoys a positive relationship with the community. But could it happen here? Will police advocate trivial law enforcement, as was the case in Chelmsford, preventing a respected businessman from having a gun because "less guns mean less crime", the height of naivete.

And perhaps a great irony here are the cases of criminals filing charges against gun owners who use their weapons. Newspapers carry stories regularly of the criminal breaking into a home who is stopped by a gun owner protecting his or her family and property. The injured criminal can then actually sue, and that is where police contend they have liablity.

Two can sue for liability

But here is the flip side of that letigious coin. Mr. Citizen is denied his permit for lawful purposes despite passing the background check. While in the city he is attacked, mugged, and seriously injured. He himself should sue the police for liablity because had his permit to carry at all times been permitted he would have had the protection to avoid the injury.

If the criminals can sue, so too should the good guys.

Briefly in Politics . . .

The Massachusetts Republican Party is expected to unveil its own redistricting plan for 1992 which would change the face of the Twentieth Middlesex District, now including all of Tewksbury and Wilmington precincts 1,2,4 and 5. The district would expand north to include one precinct in Lowell, while a good chunk of Wilmington would merge with the Andover representative district now held by Republican Gary Coon, meaning Rep. Marinne Brenton would no longer have a Wilmington precinct. Rep. Rob Krekorian would keep precinct six. It's unclear what impact the G.O.P. proposal will have, as the House leadership, controlled by Democrats, will undoubtedly control any redistricting blueprint for 1992. Rep. James Robert Miceli, who's controlled the Twentieth seat for 14 years, was a member of the last redistricting committee. Governor William F. Weld is pushing for a speedy redistricting in time for the 1992 elections while many Democrats prefer a 1994 timetable.

As for the 1992 races locally, Tewksbury's State Senator Patricia McGovern (D) may be targeted by the state G.O.P. Political insiders see McGovern's home of Lawrence as a bastion of discontented voters, frustrated with the city's growing problems and prepared to take out their anger on the senator should the right opponent emerge. Further, Republican strategists believe McGovern's suburban constituencies like Tewksbury are ripe for a moderate G.O.P. candidate. Party strategists are whooing two possible contenders, both from different ends of the district.

McGovern came to the state senate defeating legendary politico Senator Wall, and serves as Senate President Billy Bulger's ways and means chairman, a title former Republican candidate Alba Castilla tried to exploit against McGovern in the 1990 election. McGovern's re-election victory was by a wide margin and she enjoys an impressive campaign treasury. But Republicans believe their party's new found stength and Governor Weld's growing popularity will boost a candidate's chances in '92. Also, within McGovern's own district key communities went with Republicans for seats in the House; Rep. Brion Cangiamila in Billerica and Rep. Gary Coon in Andover. "Tewksbury Republicans are actively making plans to unseat Ms. McGovern," said Greg Reynolds, chairman of the Tewksbury Republican Town Committee.

Next Monday night the Wilmington Board of Selectmen and Housing Authority meat jointly to select David Fitzgerald's replacement. Fitzgerald, past authority chairman, leaves behind a political lobbying battle between supporters of former candidate Dot Butler and local businessman Al Meegan. While Meegan has been meeting with officials introducing his platform and agenda, Butler's strategists have dangled votes for votes, contending that a thumbs down on Butler means seniors will organize against the aggressor selectman or housing authority member. "The fact is, if they're worried about me running again they won't have to — I'm not running again, I did what I was supposed to do," said Chairman Dan Gillis, adding, "The only reason I'm staying on is to stop Mike Donovan's negative tactics." Donovan is past chairman and has butted heads with Gillis and his other collegues on various issues at the authority.

Gillis said his vote is committed to Al Meegan, who he sees as the non-political candidate who has been talking to people about ideas for new, affordable housing for Wilmington residents.

Summer musings

by Arlene Surprenant

---Can't wait till next summer to do all the things I'm missing this summer-things like taking my youngest to Whalom Park and the swan boats in Boston Public Gardens. We did make side trips to Maine and Gloucester and enjoyed some of the best lobster dinners around.

---Speaking of food, the salad bar at Rocco's Restaurant offers a delicious alternative to heavier pasta dishes and the like on hot summer days.

---Anyone for school shopping? Fall togs may be on the rack but few customers are in evidence. Wool and high temps just don't mix.

---More Wilmington families are getting involved and hosting exchange students this year. School committeeman John DeMarco and his family are the latest to welcome a Spanish student to their home for the month of August.

---Love riding on Wilmington's newly paved streets. Bob Palmer and the DPW did a great job on Aldrich Road. Lowell Street by Luccis has a new look too, following recent gas main construction.

---Boy, do those recyclables pile up after a few weekends away. At least my kids are stomping and saving plastic milk containers and glass jars in my absence.

---What's so bad about limiting years of service on town boards? Selectmen should follow through and come up with regulations to do just that. At the same time, those who volunteer their time deserve recognition for taking a vital interest in this town. Their job is very often thankless and involves long hours.

---Ken Spinelli is departing for greener pastures, or at least sunnier ones. He'll take up residence soon in the Sunshine State.

---Busy moms bless the Tiny Tots and Playground programs in Wilmington. It's not every town that provides such a creative and fun way to spend the summer.

---The recession's still alive in Massachusetts. Just check out the number of homes and cars for sale locally, not to mention the number of Wilmingtonites on the unemployment lines.

---An August vacation for the school committee? Those of us who follow the goings-on of that board deserve one too.

---Jean Lafavour of Stillwater Company is keeping an old New England tradition alive. She's offering interested residents classes in building stone walls. This enterprising lady also designs and sells her own jewelry and grows plants and flowers for sale. You can contact her weekends at her home on Glen Road.

---Avon's Skin So Soft provides the best bug protection around, that is if you're into protecting bugs.

---Get well wishes to Linda Gaffey, owner of the Shawsheen Beauty Salon. Linda has been sidelined for awhile with painful shoulder problems. Come back soon, Linda, your customers are getting restless.

---Wilmington's goose problem has its counterpart in the Adirondack Mountains of New York. Seems residents of Brant Lake, our summer home away from home, are scratching their heads over scores of geese and ducks that have settled in for the third year in a row.

---Still reliving memories of May's Liberty Pole Weekend and that great Fourth celebration. This really is a unique, caring town with some special people.

---Is it my imagination or is there a decided chill in the air (and in backyard pools) as the dog days of July give way to the more fleeting days of August?

---It's obvious homeowners are taking extra pride in their gardens and landscaping these days. Will miss those homegrown veggies and colorful floral displays come winter.

---Food pantries are hurting this summer as the need increases and donations of canned goods are decreasing. The local Methodist Church is one church that is still collecting non-perishable food items. In early summer, Janet Brewer also informed church members she is looking for donations of good used clothing for local foster children in need. She and her husband Larry have been foster parents for a number of years.

---I don't envy Jim Gillis and the tough job he has figuring out school bus routes for the new term.

---Ditto school and town administrators who are making the best of a bad budget situation.

---Only six more weeks of summer. Enjoy!

So, tell us what you think!

How much longer?

Passenger rail service was restored to North Wilmington 11 years ago, after an absence of 20 years. The trains run under an agreement between the MBTA (Mass. Bay Transportation Authority) and the Merrimack Valley Transit Authority, both entities of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

North Wilmington is kind of an incidental stop. The trains are intended to provide service to the towns to the northeast, Andover, Lawrence and Haverhill.

The problem for Wilmington is that the MBTA has never built a passenger platform in North Wilmington. This leaves passengers with a high step in boarding or exiting the train.

To ease that high step, the conductor stops the train at the grade crossing for Middlesex Avenue, Route 62. This at least gives the passengers some solid footing at a higher grade than the ballast along the tracks.

Under this arrangement, however, the train blocks the road, which is a heavily traveled way linking most of North Wilmington to the rest of town.

On Tuesday evening, a train was pulling into the station just as two fire engines approached the crossing. The train proceeded to stop, completely blocking the crossing. There was nothing that the firefighters could do but wait.

Fortunately, no lives were at stake. The call to which the fire engines were responding was an alarm triggered by a water surge in an industrial building.

It is ludicrous, though, to allow a commuter train to block emergency vehicles for a two-minute period while passengers disembark. That two-minute delay could be disastrous in a life-or-death situation.

The situation has been made known to state officials, who have acknowledged the problem. Plans have been in the works for several years for a passenger platform to be built in North Wilmington. A platform would allow trains to stop in an area away from the crossing, and allow passengers to enter and exit the train with ease.

If there is one complaint about state government besides taxes, it has to be the slow pace with which projects are built. Plans are discussed for years while needs go unmet. Costs escalate, both through inflation and added engineering charges. The project is never built.

One very real irony is that a simple platform could be built for a small amount of money, and very quickly, terms which escape the comprehension of state officials.

If nothing else, the state owes an explanation of why the platform has not been built after 11 years of train service. If a private-sector enterprise engaged in such delays, the state would be assessing fines with a vengeance. Citizens, though, have no such recourse for delays by incompetent officials.

Town officials need to adopt the North Wilmington crossing as a pet cause, and apply pressure at the state level until a remedy is provided.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

I would like to respond to the open letter to the Chief of Police Wednesday, July 31.

The writer stated that she asked her son to get the beer off her premises but "it keeps coming back somehow, through someone." There obviously appears to be a severe lack of discipline and respect for the writer and her husband. Who owns this home anyway? If it was asked that the beer be removed — it should be removed immediately and should never return. How this person can continually allow drinking on her premises by people not of legal drinking age is beyond my comprehension.

Has this writer ever considered the serious consequences that her son's "drinking attitude" could have? Did it ever occur to her that although these kids are just "hanging out" in her driveway drinking that some or all of them will eventually leave to go home in a car under the influence of alcohol and could possibly do harm to someone else? She could then be held liable as her home/driveway was the location of their drinking.

It is no doubt that many of us have gotten what we have believed to be unjustified speeding tickets, but in the writer's son's case to has had more than just speeding offenses. As for his debatable unregistered vehicle — I find that difficult to understand. Either it had expired at the end of a given month or it hadn't.

His "borderline" drunk driving incident disturbs me the most. If this "borderline" young man hit an innocent person crossing the street or a family in a car — who would the writer blame then — the victims who should not have been out on the street anyway?

The writer referred to her son at one point as a young adult male child. Perhaps he should stop being treated as a "child" and as the "young adult" his age states that he is. We are talking about a 19 year old not a nine year old. We as parents eventually have to stop justifying our children's misbehaviors, especially at the age of 19 when they are "old enough to know better." The writer should do herself and society a favor by letting her son take responsibility for his actions. There will come a time when she is not there to defend him. Then what? We as a society all pay for the actions of those who drink or drive irresponsibility, through excessive fees, skyrocketing car insurance costs or more tragically through drunk driving accidents.

In some ways I sympathize with the writer — she is obviously in need of assistance in the disciplining of this young man. She expressed this in her statements "tell me how do I protect myself from criminal charges from your department? Will you help me police my private property?" and "Therefore, any social services your department can provide me will be greatly appreciated."

It is our job as parents to assert parental control over our children, not the responsibility of the Wilmington Police Department. Please don't accuse them of harassment, they are just doing what they are getting paid to do - to see that the streets of the town are as safe as possible.

We cannot expect the school system, the police department or anyone else to do the job that we acquired the day these children were born — to make them into respectful, responsible adults.

Sincerely,

Name Withheld Upon Request

Editor's comment: The question of the unregistered vehicle seems to have been in relation to a transfer, in which a motorist is allowed a three-day grace period to transfer a registration to a newly-acquired vehicle. —lfn

The August 11, 1966 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Redevelopment Authority members Rene LaRivee and Joseph Sottile, appeared before the board of selectmen to report that the town's share of the cost for the Eames Street Industrial Park would be $14,300.

Harold and Flora Smith of Laurel Avenue, were pictured at their 50th wedding celebration. Among the guests (also pictured) was Rep. Fred F. Cain.

A special town meeting was called for October 1 - the big question - where to build the new library.

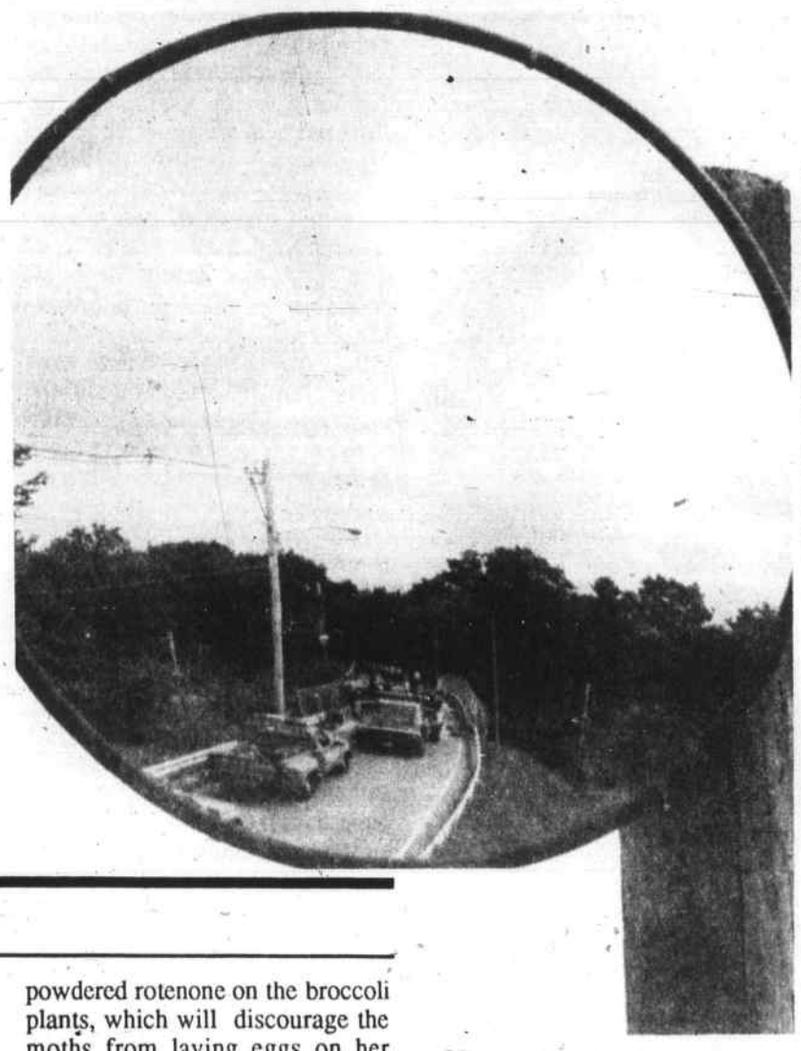

Attorney David Elfman enjoyed the opening of the Bellotti for District Attorney campaign headquarters in his building on Main Street. When the 40 or more supporters wanted to make coffee, two large urns were plugged in and the lights went out - fuses overloaded? Mr. Elfman, matches in hand descended into the basement to correct the problem when one of his friends called down the stairs - "Dave, why don't you just pay your light bill?"

Pvt. Joseph Micalizzi of Marjorie Road finished a five week engineer equipment repair course at the Army Engineer School in Fort Belvoir, Virginia.

Oakie's Lunch advertised air conditioning and 99 cent dinners.

Howard Britt of 874 Main St. veteran owner/ driver of harness race horses, was named to the N.E. Hall of Fame by the N.E. Chapter of the U.S. Harness Writers Association.

Elia's Market offered pastrami at 98 cents a pound; tomatoes and onions, 10 cents a pound; carrots and beets, 10 cents a bunch and blueberries at the "unbeatable low price of 29 cents a pint."

Like a giant dentist's mirror, a convex mirror near the Butters Row bridge gives a strange view of the deck work that was done on the bridge last week. Work is complete and the bridge is open.

backyard gardening

by Hugh Wiberg

As all gardeners eventually discover, there is no such thing as a perfect garden. Insects, diseases, soil problems and weather conditions all conspire against us during the summer months and it all becomes a test of will to see if we can stay with it into September.

I look at my garden each year as a challenge. There are so many things which can go wrong, (another Murphy's Law?) and I can count on problems occurring where none were expected.

Readers of this column are becoming more communicative this year and here is a further sampling of recent letters and phone calls.

J.R. in Tewksbury asks why I have not written about growing corn, and what can he do about raccoons damaging his crop each year?

As to why this subject has not been touched on, the reason is that very few - I'd estimate no more than two dozen - backyard gardeners grow sweet corn here in Wilmington and Tewksbury. Corn takes a lot of room, needs several sprayings to prevent borers and earworms, and is relatively inexpensive at farmstands. I hesitate to write about those crops which are not commonly grown. As to raccoons, their numbers, like woodchucks are way up this year. Try this; as soon as the silk forms at the top of the ears, sprinkle cayenne pepper around that area. Repeat the application weekly and after it rains. When the coon gets a snootfull of pepper, he will look elsewhere for his or her evening meal.

T.S. in Wilmington called to ask why her snap bean plants always appear stunted and seem to develop yellowed leaves when the plants are only three or four inches high. In the course of this conversation it was learned that her beans have been planted in the same corner of the garden for many years. Bean production has fallen off to next to nothing. My best guess is that root nematodes have built up their population in the bean patch and are destroying the root systems. Nematodes are microscopic translucent worms which live in the soil and attack many kinds of plant roots. Peas and beans are especially prone to nematode attacks when crops are not rotated in the garden. You can treat the soil next spring with diazinon granules (following directions to the letter) and, most important, plant your legumes in a different location every year.

E.L. in Tewksbury writes to ask if there is any connection between the white butterflies he sees around his broccoli plants and the green worms which inevitably show up in the broccoli heads. Good observation. The white butterfly, with three or four black spots on the wings, is indeed the moth of the common green cabbage worm. Since this gardener is trying to go totally organic, I suggested using powdered rotenone on the broccoli plants, which will discourage the moths from laying eggs on her dusted plants. Rotenone is an organic pesticide, and must be reapplied immediately after rainfall.

Finally, R.M.in Tewksbury asks when to harvest her green peppers. The skin of the peppers must be hard and shiny. Peppers can be harvested any time after the fruits are a couple of inches long. Taste and texture do not change much as the peppers get larger. Left on the plants too long they will turn red or yellow. Keep the plants picked and you can expect to harvest peppers right through to the first frost.

Keep in mind that your flower and vegetable plants require an inch of water each week, either by rainfall or sprinkling, to thrive and mature properly.

Local nurses opt for certification

Today more than ever, nursing is becoming a highly complex and competitive profession. There continues to be an increased need for highly trained nurses who can demonstrate a sophisticated level of knowledge and skills - nurses who have the ability to understand and utilize new, highly advanced medical equipment.

According to Joan Driscoll, BS, RNC, a clinical educator at Winchester Hospital, more nurses are choosing to achieve certification in order to obtain the needed expertise in their chosen area of practice. "At Winchester Hospital, we encourage certification in order to exemplify the high quality of care that the hospital is committed to providing," says Ms. Driscoll.

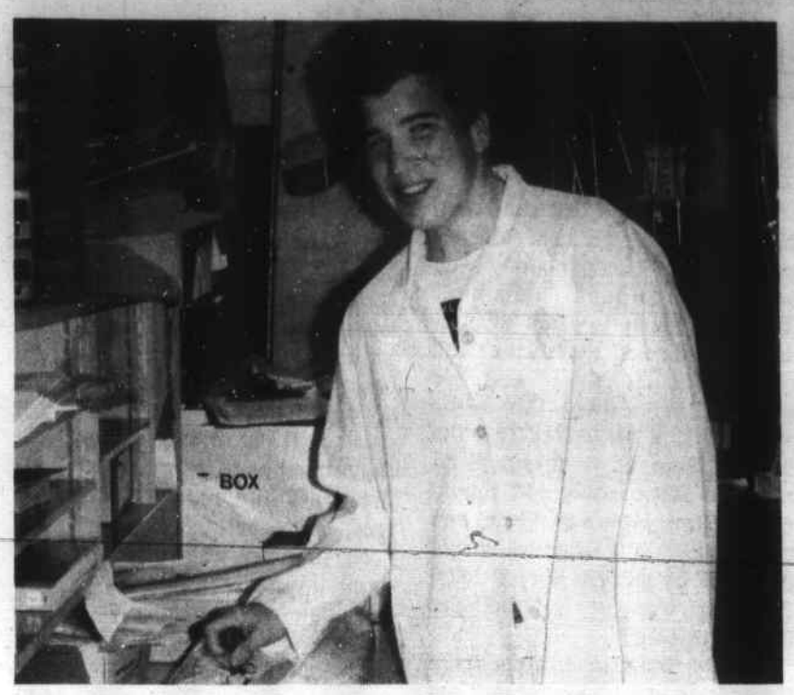

"Based on predetermined standards, certification is the process by which a professional organization validates a registered nurse's qualifications, knowledge, and practice in his or her defined functional or clinical area of practice. It establishes that a nurse has taken on the responsibility of demonstrating an advanced level of competence by meeting a national standard." At the present time, there are 21 nurses at Winchester Hospital who have received their certification.

According to American Nurses Credentialing Center, a division of the American Nurses Association which established the certification program, certification is reserved for those nurses who have met certain requirements for clinical or functional practice in a specialized field, have pursued education beyond basic nursing preparation and received the endorsement of their peers. The certification examinations are objective tests that cover knowledge, understanding and application of professional nursing theory and practice.

Carol Mitchell, RN, an oncology nurse at Winchester Hospital who received her certification, commented that the certification exam covered all aspects of cancer and oncology nursing. "It was challenging preparing for and taking the certification exam," said Ms. Mitchell. "And it was exciting finding out where I stood among my peers in the country."

Lorraine Smith, RN, who is certified in "inpatient obstetrics," has been in the nursing field for 25 years. "To me, being certified means that I am experienced and highly qualified in my field," said Ms. Smith.

Certification offers a variety of benefits for a practicing nurse, says Joan Driscoll. "By becoming certified, you increase your potential for job opportunities and increased salary," she said. "But more important is the self fulfillment and personal satisfaction you receive from knowing you are a leader in your field."

Junior volunteer

James MacDonald of Wilmington is one of more than 150 teenagers from 11 towns serving as junior volunteers at Winchester Hospital this summer. MacDonald who is assisting in the Central Services Department. Other juniors from Wilmington are Kristina Cullen, Ann Deislinger, Andrea Feizidis, Tammy Oakleaf and Jessica Riese. Junior volunteers work as messengers and transporters, nursing unit aides, office assistants and coffee shop aides.

Dushney heads wTe plastics division

wTe Corporation, a leader in materials recycling and waste processing technology, has named John P. Dushney, vice president, Plastics Division. Dushney will oversee all wTe plastics operations and will be responsible for the further planning and development of the business area.

This appointment reflects wTe's increased commitment to plastics recycling, a substantial part of its business. Dushney has a 20 year, diversified background in manufacturing and marketing with Monsanto Corporation where he established a track record for profit improvement, productivity enhancement, and product development. The last six years, he served as plant manager of Monsanto's Everett, Massachusetts facility.

A resident of Tewksbury, Dunshey holds a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering from New Jersey Institute of Tehcnology and a master's degree in management science from Rennselaer Polytechnic Institute. He is affiliated with a number of greater Boston area civic organizations.

"John is a highly experienced, dedicated individual and we are extremely pleased to have him with us," said David Spencer, president of the corporation. Spencer was acting manager of the Plastics Division for the past year. "We plan to build on John's leadership skills to be one of the top producers of recycled plastic resin in the country," Spencer added. He continued, "Our investments in technology development are beginning to pay off. Today, we hold nearly a 10 percent market share of the recycled PET an PE plastics business. It is my expectation that John will further expand our market share and help us penetrate new business areas."

wTe Corporation, headquartered in Bedford, designs, builds and owns and/or operates facilities that convert municipal refuse and industrial scrap into valuable materials and energy. wTe also provides consulting, research and development, and project development services. Clients include municipalities, manufacturing and industrial companies, federal and state agencies, and engineering and management consultants throughout the country.

Free course at MCC

Middlesex Community College (MCC) President Carole A. Cowan has announced an innovative educational program, beginning in September, which will offer a free three-credit open campus course to Greater Lowell residents at the institution's new City Campus in downtown Lowell. Adults Begin College (ABC) is a unique opportunity for 100 adult students to experience higher education.

The program is a continuation of the college's commitment to meet the needs of adult learners. ABC is designed to help non-traditional students set goals for further education and training.

The program is open to the first 100 applicants. To be eligible, students must have never taken a credit course at MCC and must register in person on the evening of September 4 at the City Campus, Kearney Square between 5 and 7:30 p.m. Students may register for a course on a space available basis (courses that already have 10 students registered.)

No telephone registrations can be accepted students may request a fall Open Camps catalog by calling (508) 937-5454, ext. 3287.

Mark G. Tully

Mark G. Tully received practical work in military leadership at the ROTC advanced camp at Fort Lewis, Tacoma, Wash.

The camp, attended by cadets normally between their third and fourth year of college, includes instruction in communications, management, and survival training.

Successful completion of the advanced camp and graduation from college results in a commission as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army, Guard, or Reserve.

The cadet is the son of Gerald and Judith Tully of West Street, Wilmington. He graduated from Austin Prep in 1988 and is currently a student at Norwich University in Northfield, Vt.

Courses offered at MCC

Lowell, August 13, Burlington, August 15

Middlesex Community college (MCC) will hold "Rapid Registration" evenings from 5 to 8 at the City Campus in Lowell, Kearney Square, Tuesday, August 13 and at the Burlington Campus, Terrace Hall Ave. Thursday, August 15. Placement testing will start both evenings at 6. In many cases, new students will be eligible to immediate acceptance and receive a registration instruction packet in time to enroll for the fall semester.

Weekly sessions

Tuition Payment plans are explained in the free weekly information sessions at MCC, Wednesdays at 3 p.m. in Building #4, Bedford Campus, Springs Road, and Thursday at 10:30 a.m. in Lowell, at City Campus, Kearney Square. The sessions also cover details about application and admission to the college, the financial aid process, programs and courses, and services such as academic and career counseling. For further information, contact the Admissions Office in Bedford (617) 275-8910, ext. 4506, or Lowell (508) 937, ext. 6015.

Commercial Drivers exam

MCC is offering a Commercial driver's License Exam Preparation workshop for those individuals who would like some assistance in preparing for the CDL Exam. The workshop is being offered at Lowell and Burlington campuses Wednesday and Thursday evenings in late August and September:

Session 1, August 28 and 29 at Burlington; session 2, September 11 and 12 in Lowell; session 3, September 18 and 19, Burlington; session 4, September 25 and 26, Lowell.

Individuals may register for either the four hour program of the eight hour program depending on how many endorsement tests they plan to take.

Call 617-272-7342 ext. 3240.

Student information

Free student information sessions will be offered by the MCC open campus counseling staff on the following dates:

Wed., August 21, 8 a.m.; Wed., August 28, 7 p.m.; Fri., August 30, 8 a.m. and Thurs., September 5, 8 a.m. Call (617) 272-7342, ext. 3240 or (508) 937-5454, ext. 3240.

Mental retardation assistant

MCC's open campus is offering a 15 week mental retardation assistant training program at its new City Campus in downtown Lowell beginning in September. The program provides students with the foundation needed to enter employment in the field of mental retardation direct care, or to continue their education in this area of mental health.

For information on the certificate program call 508-937-5454, ext. 6559.

Telecourses

MCC Open Campus will be introducing two new PBS telecourses in early September. "The Sociological Imagination - An Introduction to Sociology:" and "Something Ventured: Small Business Management."

Telecourses are a convenient way for adult learners and other students seeking alternative to on-campus classes to earn college credit.

On Sept. 10, at 6:45 p.m., Something Ventured will begin at MCC City Campus in Lowell. Through weekly televised lessons, students will have the opportunity to observe a variety of small businesses in operation.

A second telecourse, The Sociological Imagination, will be offered beginning Sept. 12 at 6:45 p.m. at the MCC Burlington Campus. This introductory level sociology course is designed to provide students with an in-depth look at groups, communities, institutions and social situations that illustrate major sociological concepts.

Call 617-272-7342, ext. 3240 or 508-937-5454, ext. 3240.

Speedy enrollment

Applying for college courses can sometimes be complicated and time consuming, but Middlesex is simplifying the process. The admission office at MCC makes enrolling for courses as easy as possible.

The college is planning its first Rapid Registration evening at Burlington Campus, Terrace Hall Avenue. The event is scheduled for Thurs., Aug. 15 from 5 to 8 p.m. to accommodate working people or those with daytime responsibilities.

Admissions staff will be on hand to advise prospective students on tuition payment plans, financial aid procedures, part time and full time academic program options and arrangements for career counseling. Call (617) 275-8910, ext. 4506.

New courses

In today's global world economy new business opportunities are more frequently arising outside of the US. To encourage the participation of local businesses in international trade, MCC is introducing a series of new programs this fall which will focus on preparing participants for the realm of international business.

"Introduction to International Business" is the initial course in the certificate and will be offered beginning Monday, Sept. 9 from 6:45 to 9:30 p.m. at MCC Burlington Campus. The three credit course explores the basics of international trade, from marketing to completion of shipment.

Other courses to be offered include Understanding Foreign Cultures, Import/Export Process, International Marketing, Financing for International Business, Managing International Operations and two language courses. Another course option by MCC is "Going Global: Getting Started in International Trade," a five session non credit workshops developed in cooperation with the American Management Assoc. Ext. Inst. The course will meet Monday evenings beginning Sept. 9 at the Burlington Campus.

The AMA course provides an opportunity to demystify importing and exporting procedures.

For more information, call 617-272-7342, ext. 3240 or 508-937-5454, ext. 3240.

Walk-in registration

This fall, MCC Open Campus will offer over 550 courses and workshops beginning the week of Sept. 9. Walk-in registration begins Monday, Aug. 19 at both the Burlington and Lowell city Campus sites. Hours are Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

To request a free catalog, 24 hours a day, call 617-272-3331.

Hair is the Total You

By Michelle Vacca

GETTING ON A NEW WAVELENGTH

For better or worse, the length of a woman's hair tends to affect the perception of her age. Long hair is associated with youth, while short hair can make a woman look older and more sophisticated. On the basis of these general images of hair length, young girls are likely to wear their hair up, or cut short, in order to appear more mature. As a woman approaches 30, she is more likely to retain her hair's length as a youth preserving measure. Then, usually by the time a woman gets to her mid-30's, the perception of hair length reverses. Short hair tends to make her look younger, while long hair tends to age her. For this reason, those women who have held on to their long tresses throughout their early adult lives may want to consider a shorter cut for a fresh, revitalized image.

Let us design the look that is best for your personality and lifestyle at our friendly and relaxed salon. SHAWSHEEN HAIR SALON, 161 Shawsheen Ave., Rt. 129, Wilmington, (508) 658-9475. Hours: open six days and nights of the week, closed Sun. Let us introduce you to our line of Matrix hair care products for every type and condition of hair. Our salon uses only environmentally safe products.

New England Championship

Wildcats finally fall, 5-4

Wilmington's Senior Softball girls, fresh off a State Championship, were eliminated from the New England Tournament last Friday night (August 2) at New London, Conn. to end what was a superb postseason run for the local stars. The summary of the week's games.

Game one vs. Maine

The Wilmington girls were down 6-0 after one inning, but when Jen Murray settled down her pitching and the defense of the Wildcats gave her the 10-7 victory.

Kristi Lyman,Laurie Southmayd and Nancy Pote were all over the field defensively and Stacy Gillis led the offense.

Game two vs. Vermont

The Wildcats fell to Vermont, 20-8 in by far their poorest performance. Vermont went ahead 12-0 and never was challenged.

Adrienne Fay had a good night at the bat, but her pitching and the team defense were left on the benches of Connecticut.

Game three vs. Rhode Island

The Wildcats jumped out at the R.I. team 5-0 after two innings and then coasted to a 10-6 victory over the Reds.

This was Wilmington's biggest game and the girls didn't let down coaches Mike Alonardo and Jack Holloway.

Wilmington pitcher Jen Murray once again shined. R.I. had the bases loaded twice in the game and soon found out who Laurie Southmayd was by turning two doubleplays unassisted to stiffle the Reds. Southmayd was also the offensive leader of this game.

Game four vs. New Hampshire

First half of doubleheader

Wilmington beat N. H. in a must game, taking it, 15-3. There was no question that the Wildcats needed this one - Stacy Gillis, Laurie Southmayd, Adrienne Fay, Leanne Tarrentino and Jacqui Holloway got things started after the Wildcats were trailing 2-0 after one inning.

The Wildcats jumped out to a 10-3 lead before putting in the substitutes, Lyndsey Currier, Rene Vachon, Carrie Tarrentino and Jenna Neale who came up with big plays in the field.

Michelle Ciramaglia was the D.H. in this game. Jen Murray pitched a great game, ending her season 6-0 in tournament play.

Before continuing on to the second game of the doubleheader, the Wildcats had a 25 minute break as after being on the field since 4:30, they were starting to tire.

With the tourney pitching rules, the Wildcats had to use their number three pitcher.

Game five vs. Connecticut

The Wildcats might have had faster pitchers, but when all the discussion was over, 13 year old Nicole Dussault got the nod for the most improved game for the Wildcats.

As expected, Kristi Lyman (catcher) threw out any attempts of stealing by Conn. and Laurie Southmayd showed her arm at shortstop, but Dussault just kept throwing strikes.

By the fifth inning the score was 2-2 . In that inning a bad call took Wilmington out of the game as the Wildcats fell, 5-4. Dussault pitched a three-hitter.

The coaches and the players of the Wilmington Little League Girls All-Stars would like to thank the following people and organizations for supporting the team on their trip.

James Gillis, Dunkin Donuts, Lucci's, Demoulas, East Gate Liquors, Uncle Mickey's, Community Fund, Wilmington Fire Dept., and the people of Wilmington.

District 13 champions

Perfect bunt

Wilmington's Julie Gillis lifts a perfect bunt in recent State Championship softball action at Rotary Park. The 11-12 year old girls used the bunt to perfection throughout the tournament.

WHS football yard sale

There will be a yard sale and auction this Saturday, August 10 on the town common to benefit the Wilmington High School football team. The event is sponsored by the WHS Alumni Association and the money raised will be used to defray the cost of the sending the WHS football team to it's annual summer preseason camp. Saturday there will be a yard sale from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m., with an auction starting at 12:30. Gift certificates and other valuable gift items will be available at the auction.

First practice

Believe it or not, it's that time of year as the Wilmington Pop Warner squads began practice Monday night. See other photos in this week's sports section.

Star blur

Rounding first and creating a blur after lashing a basehit is Wilmington's Nicole Ciaramaglia.

Shriners Road Race Aug. 11

The Ninth Annual Road Race to Benefit the Shriners Burns Institute, sponsored by the Lowell Firefighters Club, is to be held rain or shine Sunday, August 11, with all net proceeds going to the support of the Shriners Burns Institute, Boston, according to Club President John Dowling.

Scheduled to start at 10:45 a.m., the five mile race, which is expected to draw 500 plus runners, will end at the Lowell Firefighters Club. Trophy presentations will take place at 12:30 p.m. as will the check presentation to the Shriners Hospital officials.

The world renowned burns facility for children has been the beneficiary of the event since 1985, and, to date, approximately $58,000.00 has been raised by the local firefighters for the charitable pediatric institution.

The institute is one of 22 Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children in North America, where any child, regardless of race, color or creed, may receive quality medical and hospital care at absolutely no cost to the parents, third party payors or the government.

Pirates swim to strong third

The Merrimack Valley Pirates swim team finished in third place in a field of 55 teams at the New England Age Group Championship meet held last weekend at Brown University in Providence.

Sixty-eight Pirates combined for a total of 1,698 points as 98.8 percent of MVP's swimmers at the meet posted best times.

Coaches Rich Battistini and Josh Willman had nothing but praise for their athletes. "Everyone swam great in every age group. They put in the hours in the pool this summer and their hard work really paid off," said Battistini.

Coach Willman concurred. "This was a terrific team effort. Some of our senior swimmers are working fulltime this summer and really have to make an extra effort to get to practice. It's hard for the younger kids to give up their time, too, but their efforts show in the results. We've never placed this high at Summer Age Groups before. It's great."

Six Pirates were New England champions. Diane Liberty (13-14) captured the 400, 800 and 1500 m freestyle events and the 200 m butterfly, while Kurt Leslie won gold in the 50 m free in the 15-18 class. Margaret Reilly,Wendy Mooney, Melissa Schofield and Kristen Perrault won the 800 m freestyle relay (15-18).

MVP scored points in every age group, beginning with the eight and unders, where Nicole Hendrickson was 12th in the 100 m freestyle and 16th in 50 m back and breaststroke events. She teamed with Michelle Riley, Emily Rochfort and Courtney Catalano for third place finish in the 200 m free relay and with Riley, Rochfort and Lyndsay Gerolimo for fifth in the medley relay.

Jessica Schoen led the 9-10 girls with an eighth place finish in the 200 free, 12th in the 50 and 100 freestyles and 16th in the 50 m breaststroke. She teamed with Rebecca Maccaro, Jilian Middlemiss and Scarlette Quigly for fifth in the 400 m free relay, 10th in the 200 free relay and 13th in the 200 medley relay.

In the 11-12 class, Clewis Kinnett placed eighth in the 50 meter breaststroke and ninth in the 100 m breaststroke, both in zone-qualifying times, 10th in the 200 individual medley, 12th in the 50 m butterfly and 16th in the 400 m free. Elizabeth Ackley, Lael Byrnes and Lyndsay St. Onge joined Kinnett for ninth in the 200 m free relay and 14th in the 400 m free relay, while Kinnett, Ackley, St. Onge and Andrea Gerolimo were 11th in the 200 m medley relay.

In addition to her gold medal swims, Diana Liberty was third in the 200 free, fourth in the 400 m individual medley, 11th in the 200 I.M. and 15th in the 200 m backstroke in the 13-14. She placed fifth in the high point standings.

Kait McLaughlin was 10th in the 200 back, 11th in the 200 fly, 13th in the 400 I.M. with a senior cut time, 14th in the 100 back and 200 breaststroke and 16th in the 1500 m freestyle.

The 800 m free relay of Jessica Janiak, Tracie Grant, McLaughlin and Liberty was seventh. Grant, McLaughlin and Liberty were joined by Janine Caputo for a 12th place finish in the 400 free relay and by Heather Wilder for 13th in the 400 medley relay.

John Newland, Adam Schoen and Eric Williams scored for the MVP 13-14 boys, with Newland 13th in the 800 and 1500 frees and 14th in the 400 free. Schoen was fifth in the 200 free, seventh in the 400 free and eighth in the 100 free.

Williams placed third in the 200 m breaststroke, fourth in the100 m breaststroke, 10th in the 400 free and 15th in the 1500 m freestyle.

These three teamed with Peter Olinski for a fourth place finish in the 800 free relay and a seventh in the 400 m medley relay. David Howe joined Olinski, Schoen and Williams for ninth in the 400 m free relay.

Melissa Schofield (15-18) was fifth in the 800 free, ninth in the 100 free and 200 back and 12th in the 400 and 1500 freestyles and was eighth in the high point scoring.

Teammate Wendy Mooney placed sixth in the 800 free, seventh in the 200 m butterfly, 11th in the 1500 free, 13th in the 400 free and 14th in the 400 m I.M.

Kristen Perrault was third in the 800 free and fifth in the 150 m free, while Jennifer Sheehan was eighth in the 200 m breaststroke and 14th in the 100 m breaststroke.

Barbara Hickey placed ninth in the 800 free and 16th in the 1500 free with teammates Jen Lamontagne 11th in the 100 free and Sheri Beck 12th in the 800 free.

In addition to the gold medal performance of the "A" team in the 800 free relay, the "B" relay of Hillary Holbrook, Stephanie St. Onge, Beck and Hickey finished eighth.

In the 400 m medley relay, Schofield, Sheehan, Mooney and Margaret Reilly were seventh, while Mary Beth Feeney, Cinzia Scolari, Hickey and Beck were 14th.

Mooney, Sheehan, Lamontagne and Reilly were eighth in the 400 m free relay, while Schofield, Hickey, Beck and St. Onge finished 12th.

Matt Liberty won the high point trophy in the men's 15-18 age group with a second in the 800 free, third in the 400 and 1500 frees, 200 fly and 40-0 I.M., fifth in the 200 M.I., sixth in the 200 m breaststroke, ninth in the 100 fly and 13th in the 200 free.

Kurt Leslie was fourth in the 100 fly and sixth in the 100 free in addition to his gold in the 50 m free.

Garett Burke placed sixth in the 50 free and 100 back, 10th in the 200 back and 100 fly and 11th in the 100 free.

Reed Newland scored points for seventh in the 1500 free, 10th in the 400 free, 12th in the 800 free and 13th in the 200 fly.

John Fischer finished 11th in the 800 and 1500 freestyles, 12th in the 400 free and 14th in the 200 fly, while David Murman was third in the 200 m breaststroke and 10th in the 100 m breaststroke.

Burke, Murman, Leslie and Liberty were third in the 400 m medley relay, with Beau Lamontagne, Newland, Fischer and Randy Yang 14th.

In the 400 m free relay Liberty, Burke, Newland and Leslie were fourth, while Lamontagne, Fischer, Jamie Tuttle and Chris Blongiewicz were ninth.

All four Pirate teams in the 800 m freestyle relay scored. Liberty, Burke, Newland and Leslie were fourth with the "B" team of Fischer, Blongiewicz, Murman and Matt Swenson in seventh, the "C" team of Jeff Wicklund, Rob Egan, John Oliver and Tuttle in eighth and the "D" relay of Lamontagne, Yang, Matt Jennings and Adam Robb in eighth place.

Kurt Leslie will represent the Merrimack Valley Pirates at the National Junior Olympics-East meet in Tuscaloosa, AL. August 2-6, while Clewis Kinnett will swim in the Eastern Zone Championships in Oakmar, VA August 7-10.

Charging into action This group of Wilmington Pop Warner football linemen look to be in midseason form as they charge off the line of scrimmage Monday night.

Football officials course Aug. 26

The Association of New England Football Officials is offering a training course for those interested in becoming high school football officials beginning Monday, August 26 at the Irish American Club in Malden. To be taught by current college and high school officials, the program will be held one night each week for nine weeks. Cost of the course is $40. For information and to register, call (617) 894-0384.

Hole-in-one Classic

If you didn't win Megabucks or MassMillions last week, there's still another option. Pull that driver out of your golf bag, and start swinging for the Third Annual $1,000,000 Hole-in-One Golf Classic to benefit the March of Dimes. The classic will take place on October 19, 20 and 27 at Whirlaway Golf/Running and Sports Center in Methuen.

All proceeds from the $1,000,000 Hole-in-One go toward the March of Dimes Campaign for Healthier Babies, an initiative to increase the numer of women receiving prenatal care. For more information, or to volunteer, call the March of Dimes at (617) 272-3036.

Insects fill every niche

by Bill Conlon

Where do all these insects come from?

Answer: Everywhere. Insects do the incredible, when it comes to the filling of environmental niches. If there is the possibility for life, or an aspect of nature that hasn't been exploited, the insects will find it, and flourish.

We're familiar with the common insects, and we know where some of them breed. Or do we?

Take mosquitoes, please. Everybody knows mosquitoes breed only in water. Well, sort of.

Mosquitos breed in all sorts of water. Some prefer small puddles of standing water, such as found in old tires and half-filled bottles. But other mosquitos breed only in foul water, such as septic overflow, and others breed only in swamps. There is incredible variety of mosquitos, and 44 species in Massachusetts are known to feed on humans. The list of non-human biting mosquitoes is much, much bigger.

As an example of insects filling an environmental niche, look at the common water strider. This long-legged insect runs on the surface of the water, held up by the surface tension. Water striders supposedly taste bad enough that fish will leave them alone, so they thrive on top of the water, their private kingdom. Insects live above and below the water, but only the striders own the surface itself.

Ticks, nasty suckers that they are, still manage to survive in the worst possible places. In the Arctic, or so I'm told, you won't find a single living mammal without finding a few hundred ticks as well. Every warm-blooded creature in the icy wastelands plays host to battalions of the bloodsuckers.

Butterflies are everywhere, but a species of plant is host to only a few types of butterfly. The lovely black and orange Monarch butterfly will feed and lay its eggs only on milkweed plants, and none other. Without milkweed, there would be no Monarchs.

But the Viceroy butterfly looks just like the Monarch, and it takes a pro to tell them apart. And there is a good reason.

By feeding strictly on milkweed, the Monarch tastes as bitter as the milkweed, although I won't vouch for that fact first-hand. Ahem. Any bird that has eaten a Monarch will never again touch one. If a Viceroy flitters by, the bird won't touch that either. Can't tell them apart. Aha!

Other species of butterfly require different plants, which is logical. If one species of plant played host to a dozen different butterfly species, the caterpillars would soon strip the plant bare, and into extinction. By spreading out, and covering all the plants, there is enough for all.

By the way, a popular item these days is a wildflower garden, with all sorts of native blooming plants. A wildflower garden will attract all sorts of different butterflies, while a "standard" garden won't.

Just for the record, you can tell a moth from a butterfly by antennae and wing scales. Butterflies have smooth antenna and rounded wing scales (under a microscope), while moths have fluffier antennae and ragged scales.

Some nocturnal moths rely upon camoflage during the day, to keep them safe, which they don't need at night. Check out some of the darker moths visiting your porch light tonight, then imagine those same insects lying motionless against a tree. You'll notice that their colors would blend in perfectly with tree bark, which is their survival trick.

Bees aren't quite so exclusive in their feeding. By visiting whatever plant is blooming at the time, bees transfer pollen and the plant is able to reproduce. Different plants are blooming at different times, so the bees are busy throughout the long growing seasont.

The bee family has a few native species, such as the sweat bee, so the plants didn't need the Europeans to introduce the familiar honeybee for them to survive. The little "sweat bee" pollinates just fine, thanks.

Anything landing on the ground is subject to insect feeding, except of course for rocks. Wood will be eaten by termites, leaves by "leaf-cutter" ants, organics by maggots and beetles, and the list goes on. All things dying and landing on the dirt are utilized by some form of life.

How can termites eat wood? They don't. Termites intestinal tracts are full of bacteria which digest cellulose, and the termites survive on the bacteria's by-products. Clever.

Some species of insect have very little to do with the air. Mayflies, a popular insect among trout anglers, only hatch into the air to breed, but they hatch in great numbers. But the adults only live a few hours, long enough to breed, then they die. The eggs are laid upon the water, where the larvae live their lives.

Dragonflies, on the other hand, do equally well above and below the water. The dragonfly larvae is a notorious predator underwater and the adults are notorious predators of flying insects above. Two niches with one insect!

If one insect breeds without being limited by predators (a la the gypsy moth), we have a problem. Luckily there is no shortage of predators, from birds to spiders to other types of insect. By the millions they die, and by the millions they breed.

But the insects were here before mankind appeared, they've adapted to virtually every stratum of life on Earth, and they'll be here long after we're gone. They eat practically everything, and live almost everywhere on the planet.

And mankind has never been able to eradicate any species of insect, no matter how hard we've tried.

They're here to stay.

Night fishing enthusiasts might be interested in the Tuesday nighters at WildSide Sports in Wilmington. A bunch of guys gets together at 6 p.m. at WildSide, puts $10 apiece into a hat, then fishes a local pond until 10 p.m. Whoever catches the biggest bass takes the pot. If not for meetings every Tuesday, I'd be the first one in line.

August 15 is the deadline to send in antlerless deer permit application. Pick a zone, fill out the form on your license, and mail it, soon.

Yes, Virginia, there will be a deer hunt in the Quabbin reservation this year, to control an overpopulation problem. The MDC will pick 900 hunters at random, for the harvest, and each hunter receives a special antlerless permit as well. Expect to see air-tight controls on this hunt, because the "antis" are all fired up. Applications will become available Sept. 2 through MDC and through Division of Fisheries & Wildlife. More details later.

Tiger Muskie

Spy Pond in Arlington gave up this 14-pound tiger muskie on Saturday to Bob Scelzo of N. Reading. Bob was using a black "Blue Fox" spinner, fishing near shore when the monster struck, but he was also using a wire leader to protect his 8-pound test line. The prize was taken to WildSide Sports in North Wilmington to be mounted for the wall.

Summer basketball

Last call for the Wilmington Rec's Mini-Basketball Camp for boys and girls ages six and seven and eight to 13. For ages six and seven there will be a one week mini-camp at the Shawsheen Elementary School from August 12 to 16, 10:30 a.m. to noon. For ages eight to 13 there will be an instructional program in the North Intermediate Gym from 1 to 3 p.m. Dates are the same.

Especially for girls, there will be a free clinic on Monday evening August 12 and 26 from 6 to 8 p.m. at the WHS tennis courts. This instructional program is for grades four to seven. Sue Rowe, WHS varsity coach, will be conducting the drills.

Red Sox trips

The Wilmington Rec will be sponsoring trips to see the BoSox in action Wednesday evening, August 21 vs Cleveland and Saturday afternoon, Sept. 7 vs Seattle. Cost is $8 per person and includes bus ride and ticket.

Fall openings

The Rec is looking for a tennis instructor for the fall program and is in need of a supervisor for the junior basketball program for six and seven year olds. If interested contact the Rec. Dept.

Rafting trip

The Rec is putting together a special discount rafting trip for Sunday, September 22 on the fabulous Dead River in northwest Maine. Call the Rec Office for details on this thrill of a lifetime trip.

Playground program

The Playground Program is in it's final week at the pine grove behind Town Hall on Glen Road. On Monday, Aug. 5 playgrounders took part in wrap-bracelets in arts and crafts. Tuesday they competed in the annual Crane's Beach sand castle competition in Ipswich. Wednesday, we took our last field trip of the summer program to RollerWorld in Saugus.

Thursday the group will participate in the first annual McManus Golf Tournament. We will end this successful summer season Friday, Aug 9 with a party and awards day. All leaders hope that all the playgrounders enjoyed the program as much as they did.

Winners posted in mailbox beauty contest

But can it sing?

In case you were wondering who has the most beautiful mailbox in town, wonder no more. The honor goes to Gabe and Irene Flores of Gowing Road, winners of the Mailbox Improvement Contest. Postmaster Jake Quinn presented them with a sheet of stamps as a prize. With them are rural mail carriers Nancy Kelly and Michael Doucette.

Pity the mail carrier. Not only do they have to put up with rain, hail, sleet and the dark of night — not to mention pit bulls — they also have to deal with some very tough mailboxes.

If it were only one mailbox per day, it would be no problem. But broken mailboxes installed at the wrong height containing hornets nests and other surprises can create big problems for mail carriers trying to provide good service.

In an effort to have residents fix up their mailboxes, the Wilmington Post Office recently held a mailbox improvement contest.

While the basics were stressed, i.e. proper height, eliminating hornets, etc., the post office offered some prizes for the most improved and most beautiful maiboxes. Nominations were accepted from each rural mail route.

Top honor went to the Flores and Turner family of Gowing Road. They were awarded a sheet of stamps.

The list of winners for "most improved" includes: Kealos, Chestnut Street; Hunter, Lang Street; Mahoney, Chapman Avenue; Kane, Kajin Way; Coakley, Ashwood Avenue; Burns, Lockwood Road; Gigante, Mozart Avenue; and Carr and Firicano, McGrane Avenue.

Those with the most beautiful mailboxes are: Peterson, Swain Road; Tutela, Douglas Avenue; Turner and Flores, Gowing Road; Moore, Westdale Avenue; Cuoto, Ashwood Avenue; Miller, Andover Street; Tynan, Forest Street; and Crowe, McDonald Road.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending August 6, Wilmington Police Officers responded to 25 alarms, two assaults, assisted other departments on four occasions; made six arrests to five protective custody detentions.

Ten bank escorts were completed, two burglaries were investigated along with 15 reports of disorderly conduct and 13 domestic problems were quieted.

Three larcenies were checked out, four vehicles were reported stolen and five were recovered; three persons were reported missing, medical assistance was rendered six times and five non-criminal complaints were logged.

Eight public services were performed, two retraining orders were issued, four traffic accidents were investigated and seven traffic services were completed.

Four complaints against recreation vehicles were taken, 12 incidents of vandalism were reported along with 11 incidents of suspicious activity.

Arrests

Wednesday evening Officers Hancock and Waterhouse arrested a Woburn man while on patrol on Route 125 at Route 93. Paul Quinlan, 20, of Auburn Street , Woburn was charged with motor vehicles offenses and bailed for Woburn Court.

Friday morning at 7:30 a.m. Officer Joe Harris arrested Karl Miller, 25 of Pleasant Street, Wilmington while on radar patrol on Middlesex Avenue. Miller was held on a default warrant issued by Wilmington.

Shortly after midnight Saturday Officer Chip Bruce drove to Tewksbury to arrest John Ellwood, 19 of Dracut on the basis of a default warrant issued by Wilmington . Ellwood was bailed for an appearance in Woburn Court Monday.

Monday morning Officer Jim Cuoco drove to Quincy to arrest John McNeil, 27 of Boston on the basis of a default warrant. McNeil was taken directly to Woburn Court for arraignment.

Later on Monday Officer Jim Hanlon arrested Kristina Gately, 17 of Burlington on the basis of a warrant. She was held for a Tuesday court appearance.

Police bicycle auction

The Wilmington Police Department will hold a public auction on the 17th of August for the purpose of selling off a large number of bicycles which have been picked up over the past year. There are bikes of all sizes and descriptions. The auction will start at 10 a.m. at the rear of the police station.

Any residents who have had bikes stolen in the past are welcome to look for their property during the next two weeks prior to the auction. Proper identification of your property will be needed. Please, parents come with your children if you want to look for a missing bike. There may also be other miscellaneous property available, such as car radios, stereos, tools, etc. Payment by check only please, payable to the Town of Wilmington.

Contact Deputy Chief Nally with questions, business phone, 658-5071.

Dog report

All dogs picked up by the Wilmington dog officer are now being held at the Central Animal Hospital in Stoneham. Presently, the following Wilmington dogs are at that facility:

- Female shepherd mix, black and cream, droopy ears, blue nylon collar, picked up on Washington St, off Glen Road, ready for adoption.

The dog officer may be reached for lost dogs and adoptions only at 658-7845. For dog complaints and other business, call the police business line, 658-5071. The number at Central Animal Hospital for adoptions is 617-438-6404.

Wilmington senior topics

Summer gone?

Here we are in the month of August. One more month and the summer will be gone for another year.

Whist Monday

The first whist game for the month will be held in the function room of the Buzzell Senior Citizen Center Monday, August 13 starting at 1 p.m.

Many involved

We are seeing more of our new seniors getting involved in all of our activity programs at the center. Do they enjoy themselves? Oh yes! Now and then I get a chance to drop in during the classes. Whether it's the exercise, dance, ceramic, craft, art, or shop class. I see a group of seniors as happy as they can be talking and laughing with their new friends, while getting the therapy needed by all of them. We do not have a limit as to the number of seniors who can join a class. The rooms in which they are held are all very large.

The classes are free to all Wilmington residents and 60 and older. Why not come to the center on Monday at 10 a.m. for exercise; art at 1 p.m.; Wednesday at 10 exercise; ceramic 9-12, and craft 9-12. Thursday shop 9-12 (starting in October); dance 1-2:30 p.m. Friday exercise 10-11, to see for yourself. If you like what you see, introduce yourself to the instructor and join the class.You will find it hard to stay away after you become involved with your new friends and start to feel good mentally and physically.

I left the bingo game to last. Perhaps because you wouldn't consider it a class. Maybe not, but it is therapy in keeping the mind alert. If bingo is your enjoyment it is held every Friday afternoon starting at one. We have a large board where the numbers light up. This allows those with failing hearing and sight to enjoy the game too.

Thanks, for helping

Thanks go to Lillian Brown, Mary Cunningham, Walter Kaminski, Grace Kirkland, Henry Latta, Marilyn McCarthy, Joe Paglia and Louie Thereault for their help in distributing the surplus commodities last Thursday. They all did a tremendous job bagging all the commodities, signing up the large number of young and old who lined up for their supplies. We had both sides of the hall filled and they did it in such a short time it was amazing.

Difficult time; call Hospice

Many of our seniors are caring for an elderly parent or spouse with a terminal illness. Others are being cared for by younger children in the child's home.It is the ill person's wish to die in their own home or with family member, not in a hospital. This can become a very difficult job for the caregiver. If you are a caregiver to a terminally ill person, you should contact Hospice Care Inc., 20 Academy St., Arlington, MA. 02174. Telephone number 617-648-3172. Hospice Care offers a coordinated plan of care for the whole family. Also many Medicare benefits that are available in a hospice program that are not available under Medicare coverage through hospitals and home health agencies. The team consists of a physician, nurses, a pharmacist, social workers, a pastoral and bereavement counselor. Also many volunteer hospice support workers who have all gone through what you are going through now. These people work together to coordinate the services that will best meet each family's needs. Give them a call. Trying to give all the care yourself will burn you out very fast. You will need as much help as you can to get through. When it is over you will be happy you had Hospice Care to grant your loved one's wish. And glad to have them with you after your caregiving is over.

A piece of history and a mechanical beauty

By DOUGLAS WOOD-BOYLE

It's 2-o'clock on a hot, sultry, Friday afternoon and three people are climbing the bell tower of Reading's Old South Church to study a piece of history and mechanical beauty.

Only one of the three need to be there the other two are just trying to record a piece of history.

That person, David B. Roberts, along with his brother, James H. Roberts, is responsible for keeping the clock running properly and on time. Together the pair make up Clockfolk of New England, the company charged with the responsibility of maintaining Reading's town treasure.

That treasure is a Seth Thomas built clock that has been ticking almost continuously since it was installed in early February, 1913.

The present clock with its white faces was built to replace one that was lost in the December, 1911 fire that burned the church to the ground.

The new clock was built at the Seth Thomas plant in Thomaston, Connecticut on December 24, 1912.

According to Roberts, it is one of the few time pieces in the area that has not had an electric motor added to keep it running.

Roberts has to climb the stairs once a week. On the particular day that the information for the story was gathered he had delayed the winding until the photographer and the reporter could join him on the weekly trek.

When we arrived in the steeple room just below the church bell we found the weight almost totally unwound.

Roberts said "The clock goes just three days over a week, almost to the hour between windings."

He usually tries to do the winding within the seven days. It takes 50 revolutions-per-day to rewind the bell and striker, and the seven day limit means only 350 turns.

The information is necessary to know for those times when the brothers are off on a vacation.

Usually one or the other is around to keep the regular schedule. However, if for some reason the two would be away for the 10-day period, the trip has to be timed so that one of them is back in time to keep the clock going.

However, on this particular day the clock took the full 500 revolutions of the handle.

On the average it takes about one-hour to complete the winding process. That process consists of pulling two weights back into the clock room. The first is the almost 800 pounder that balances the bell movement. The second is a 450 pound weight that helps to regulate the movement of the clock works itself.

The tall and thin Robert's brother cranks these weights up as if they were feathers. He noted that the weights are on double compound pulleys. They not only make it easier to wind the clock but also slow the speed of the weight drop.

Without the pulley system, Roberts' estimates that the clock would have to be wound every four days.

He pointed to an electric motor that has been installed for the winding of the bell and striker. However, a quick demonstration showed that hand cranking the cable is much quicker.

As Roberts winds the works, he is also looking around the clock to check for signs of needed maintenance.

Every so often, during breaks in the winding, Robert's grabs a nearby rag and wipes some dust off a wheel here or a gear there.

He notes that the clock was last overhauled by he and his brother in July of 1980. At that time it was completely taken apart cleaned and oiled.

"The next total stripping should be in about 60 more years," Roberts' said.

His pride in the working of the clock shows in the way that he talks about it.

"This clock is more than dependable," Roberts said. He noted that he checks the time against the radio recordings from Fort Collins, Colorado.

"When the clock is off, I wonder if my watch is absolutely right," Roberts said.

His pride in the clock is shared by the community that actually used to vote a $250 annual maintenance fee for the clock during the Annual Town Meeting.

This is a story about television. Well, not television, exactly. Television sets, to be more precise. The television sets used to belong to a great and good buddy of ours. We say used to because he doesn't have those television sets anymore. They didn't break, and they weren't stolen. But let there be no misunderstanding about it: these tv sets are definitely gone. Before we explain how they slipped out of the possession of our buddy, let us tell you how the issue of the missing television sets came to the forefront.

It all started last weekend, when this buddy of ours invited us over to his house to watch the first pre-season NFL football game. We're all pro football nuts, and with this season's major league baseball competition looking more and more like hack softball, we couldn't wait to tease ourselves with a little taste of what's to come this fall.

We arrive at our buddy's house, looking forward to the Denver-Detroit game and a few cold beers. We plunked ourselves down in our buddy's family room, only to discover that we were about to watch the game on an old black and white tv. When we say old, we mean old. This television set has tubes, and it takes a couple of minutes for the thing to warm up. When it finally does, not even an electrical engineer could get the picture clear enough to make out who's who on a playing field. Every few minutes the picture became distorted, and the faces of the players became, momentarily, grossly misshapen. When ever a crawl appeared on the bottom of the pictures the audio went berserk. We finally had to ask our

Pets need relief from the heat

According to Walter Kilroy, Director of Law Enforcement at the MSPCA, each year pets die from heat prostration after being left in a hot car. "Pets are very sensitive to the heat especially in an enclosed space such as a car," said Kilroy. Even with the windows left partially open, pets can overheat in as little as five to 15 minutes on an 85 degree day, according to Kilroy. In that time, a car's temperature can reach well above 100 degrees. Kilroy warned that pets are also susceptible to heatstroke when left outside without shade and water.

•If you notice heat stress symptoms -- such as severe panting or in extreme cases, staggering, weakness or collapse -- immediately begin lowering the animal's body temperature by hosing the animal down with cool water or by applying cool, wet towels to the entire body. The animal should then receive prompt veterinary attention.

•Always provide your pet with properly ventilated shelter in a well shaded area, and fresh water.

•Exercise with your pet in the cool morning or early evening hours. When starting your pet on an exercise program, make sure your pet is free from any heart problems or other health considerations and introduce the program gradually to build your pet's endurance.

For more summer pet care information, contact the MSPCA, 350 South Huntington Ave., Boston, MA 02130 or phone (617) 522-7400.

Spay and neuter your pet. Call the MSPCA at (617) 522-7400 for information about low-cost spay-neuter surgery.

THE WAKEFIELD HIGH/JUNIOR HIGH SUMMER SCHOOL is drawing to a close and among those participating are, left to right, Camelia Baez of Kamloops, British Columbia, Canada; Ed Greagosian, art instructor; Dennis O'Leary, school director; and Marilyn Feke, age 14.

About the towns

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

ICE CREAM - THEY SCREAM - Don't know how it came out - or if it did - but it caused quite a stir for a while in Wilmington where summer began with the following frosty situation, as so deliciously reported in the Town Crier:

"There's nothing like an ice cream to cool off a hot day at the beach. But there's nothing like two ice cream vendors vying for the same location to heat up a day at the beach.

"Two years ago, two ice cream vendors battled for the right to set up at the town beach at Silver Lake. Angelo Ciaramaglia of Michelle's Ice Cream and Tina Maynard of Happy Day Ice Cream, engaged in a bitter dispute with charges and counter charges flying, not to mention insults and even coffee.

"Last year, the town announced that it would allow vendors to sell at the beach for a $1000 fee. Michelle's chose to pay the fee; Happy Day did not participate ...."

This year, the town invited bids, then gave exclusive rights to Michelle's for $2000, causing Maynard much unhappiness.

Happy Day's here again? All wounds licked? For the latest scoop, contact Town Manager Michael Caira - but never on sundae.

A FITTING MEMORIAL - In a new effort to publicize the plight of and raise funds to save Stoneham's Walter D. Stone Memorial Zoo, Friends to Reopen Stone Zoo have joined forces with Stoneham's New England Memorial Hospital Woodland Shoppe.

Christmas is coming - think T-shirts, ceramic mugs, pins, buttons, Reggie the lion, Major the polar bear, monkeys, and magic. For the latest zoo update, call (617) 438-7459 or 438-9488.

WAKEFIELD CRONIES, DO DROP INN? The Marriott Corporation has named Wakefield native Bruce MacLellan 1990 Regional General Manager of the the Year for Food and Beverage.

MacLellan is the general manager of the 431-room Cambridge Marriott where he oversees all aspects of the hotel's daily operations, including front and back office functions, sales and marketing, guest recruitment, finances, catering, housekeeping and room operations; serving as liaison and property representative to the local community, increasing awareness of the hotel and its services among business and community leaders.

FREE TIME-SHARE OFFER - "Are you a singer or musician? Is Bingo your idea of heaven?"

Somerset Nursing Home Coordinator of Volunteer Services Ron Deletetsky has the following suggestions for those who would like to share their time and talents.

"Music is a universal language that reaches even our most confused residents," he notes. "Their smiles will make you glad you took the time to share your special gifts ... Playing Bingo would be heaven for a lot of our residents, too. Unfortunately, because of poor vision or limited mobility, they can only play if we find a buddy to help them - could this 'bingo buddy' be you?"

To sign up, dial Deletetsky in Reading at (617)942-1210.

Wakefield Summer School

Wakefield High/Junior High summer school is drawing to a close for the 1991 session. Over 125 students from Wakefield and surrounding communities took advantage of course offerings for academic credit and enrichment making it a highly successful session.

Students from Lynnfield, Reading, North Reading, Peabody, Medford, Stoneham, Andover, as well as Wakefield studied for six weeks a variety of subjects. Popular courses at the high school level were English, U.S. history, algebra and SAT PREP. At the Junior High School level many students found courses in the creative arts very enjoyable. New this year at the Junior High School level was a combination computer/art class that utilized Apple computers to generate artwork.

This was the first year of a combination high school/junior high school summer program.

Town clock

From S-1

Town Meeting regulars remember that it was the job of the junior member of the Board of Selectmen to get up at Town Meeting and make the motion for the annual stipend.

In 1983 a crack was discovered in the yoke holding the church and clocks bell. Estimates on the repair came to $6,500. A campaign that was aided by reports in the then Reading Chronicle helped to raise $13,000 for the repairs. the rest of the money raised was put into a trust fund.

In a look back through the pages of the Chronicle it is noted that the Town's romance with the clock goes back to 1854 when the church hired a sexton to toll the church bell at noon and again at 9 p.m. (the town curfew).

That practice reportedly continued until 1862 "when Dr. Solon Richardson of South Reading (now Wakefield) donated money for a tower clock."

That clock was installed in June of that year and kept "passable time" until 1878.

During that year, the clock would lose time and then gain it or it would misstrike the number of hours.

It was during this period that the Board of Selectmen scraped together $35 to have the clock overhauled.

Once that was done the annual funding out of Town Meeting was started.

That original clock had white hands on a black face. The new clock was built with a white face to allow bulbs to be installed inside the tower. This allowed the clock to be read at night.

According to Roberts, many of the problems that might have plagued the original clock were engineered out of the new one.

He notes that the pendulum is driven by the same Dennison Three Double Legged Gravity Escape system that was designed by Lord Grinthorpe (Edward Beckett Dennison) to drive London's "Big Ben."

The Seth Thomas people took into consideration that the cold winters and hot summers of New England might affect the length of the pendulum so it was designed to withstand the affects of the weather.

The gears of the clock works turn the four hollow steel but wood filled drive shafts on the clock. These make a complete revolution every hour, which in turns revolves smaller gears on the inside of the clock faces. Those gears make a full revolution every twelve hours and thus the clocks hands turn.

Roberts noted that the Seth Thomas people thought of the fact that the drive shafts may get bent over the years and therefore designed two universal joints on each shaft, so that the proper turns can be made.

One ingenious device is the cogged flywheel that was designed to keep the bells ringing in an orderly fashion every hour.

Even the design of the clock face was well thought out. Because the lights would show up the seams at night, those seams were designed to be hidden by the Roman numerals on the clock.

According to Roberts, it would be too expensive to make such a clock today.

In fact the Seth Thomas Company stopped production on this type of timepiece in 1929.

Roberts said that the last one was installed in 1941.

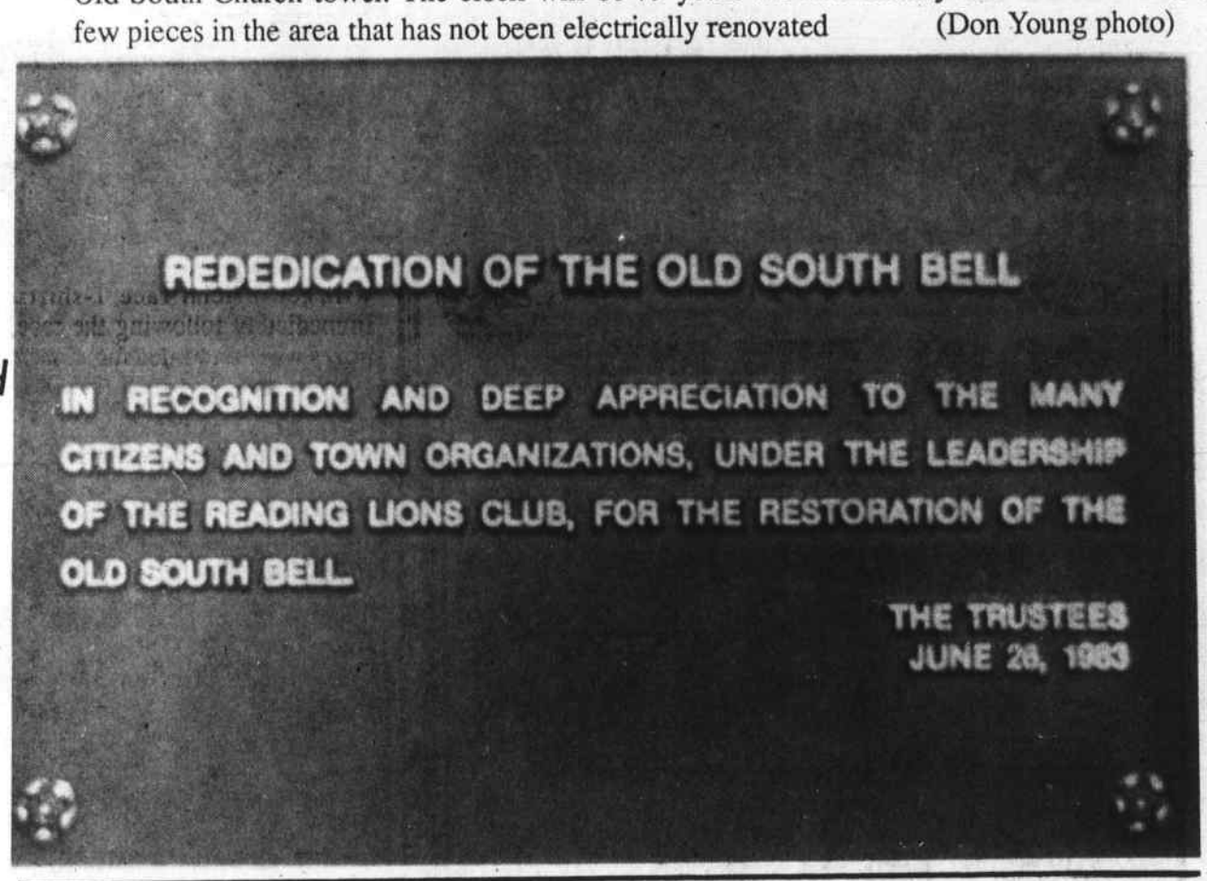

About the only element that Roberts has to contend with on this clock is that of snow.

He noted that during bad storms the snow packs up on the clock face and if even one stops then the whole clock stops until the face can be cleared.

Roberts added that the North face of the clock is the only original one left. The rest have been replaced throughout the years.

DAVID ROBERTS checks the lines as he winds the bell and striker on the clock in the Old South Church tower. The clock will be 79-years-old in February and is one of the few pieces in the area that has not been electrically renovated (Don Young photo)

"Grease" performed in Andover

The Andover Theatre Company will present its Third Annual Summer in the Park musical with "Grease" by Warren Casey and Jim Jacobs this August. The annual event is presented outdoors at Dragons Lair Playground on Bancroft Road in Andover. There are over 30 members in the cast and crew who come from a variety of cities and towns in the Merrimack Valley.

The musical play follows the troubled romance of Sandy Dumbrowski (played by Vanessa Hill of North Andover). Sandy transfers to Rydell High and meets the "Pink Ladies" on the first day. She tells them of her "Summer Nights" romance. The tough leader of the gang, Betty Rizzo (played by Arinne Trees of Chelmsford) thinks this guy sounds too good to be true. She is joined by Frenchy (played by Juree James of Andover), Jan (played by Julia Gaynor of North Andover), and Marty (played by Collenne Kiley of Andover).

They learn this special boy is the tough leader of the "Burger Palace Boys," Danny Zuko (played by Tom Ste. Marie of Chelmsford). The gang consists of second-in-command Kenickie (played by Mark Quint Peterson of Chelmsford), Roger (played by Matthew Klain of Lowell), Doody (played by Michael J. Silverman of Chelmsford) and Sonny Latiere (played by Erik Baker of Methuen).

Other characters include the high spirited cheerleader, Patty Simcox (played by Rachel Mary Bemis of North Andover), Teen Angel (played by Mark Belair of Methuen), the radio DJ, Vince Fontaine (played by Jonathan Cohen of Woburn), the strict English teacher, Miss Lynch (played by Annette Cohen of Andover), rock idol, Johnny Casino (played by Ed Dyer of Lowell) and Cha-Cha Degregorio (played by Dawn Peters of North Andover).

The performance dates are Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 p.m, August 3, 4, 10 and 11. There will also be two matinees August 3 and August 10. Ticket prices are $8 for Adults and $5 for Senior Citizens and Students under 18.

A carnival with food concessions will be part of the activities before the performance and during intermission. In addition, this year an hour before each performance a "50's Sock Hop" will be enjoyed.

For further information please contact the Director, Dennis Lorne at (508) 794-1603, or call the group at (508) 475-4221.

AUCTION TO BENEFIT JIMMY FUND

The Rolls-Royce Owners' Club presents an afternoon of championship polo, a silent auction and an exhibit of classic Rolls-Royces -- all to benefit the Jimmy Fund. This benefit will be held on Sunday, August 11 at the Myopia Hunt Club in Hamilton. Part of Myopia's 103rd season, the polo match will be played on Gibney Field, the oldest playing field in the country.

The Owner's Club will host a cocktail reception and silent auction of luxury items from 1:30 to 5 p.m. The items include a weekend for two at Boston's Four Seasons Hotel, a three-month membership at Le Pli Health Spas, and an evening out-on-the-town in a Rolls-Royce limousine. The polo match begins at 3 p.m. and after the third chukker (halftime), spectators are invited to partake in the traditional divot-stomping ritual (stomping mounds of dirt back into the field).

Take in this "hockey on horseback!" Tickets are $25 each. Questions? Call (617) 732-3148.

STATE SPONSORED BOWHUNTING SEMINAR

A free Bowhunting Seminar will be held for eight hours on August 17 (Saturday) at the Danvers Fish & Game Club, Log Bridge Road, in Middleton. The class starts at 8 a.m. Persons must register pre-register to attend this seminar by calling "Art" at (508) 774-1968.

Those attending are asked to bring their bows and arrows. Attendance is open to adult men and women, as well as minors over 10 years of age with parental permission.

These seminars are offered at several locations throughout the state by the Massachusetts Department of Fisheries, Wildlife & Environmental Law Enforcement in cooperation with the International Bowhunter Education Foundation. The program is presented by skilled bowhunters for both the experienced and beginning hunter. Among the topics covered will be the selection of equipment, safety, game preparation, and hunting methods, including tracking.

Each course graduate receives a state Bowhunting Certificate. These Massachusetts courses are honored by other U.S. states and Canadian provinces which require such training of archery hunters. For this reason, many experienced sportsmen planning hunting trips to states, such as Connecticut, Rhode Island, or New York, attend these sessions.

YOUNG WIDOWS AND WIDOWERS TO MEET

Young Widows and Widowers, Ltd., a non-profit, non-sectarian self help support organization for widowed men and women under age 50, conducts weekly support groups in the communities of Burlington, Braintree, Chelmsford, Framingham, Leominster, Lynnfield, North Andover and Salem, New Hampshire.

The Northern Essex chapter meets on Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at First United Methodist Church, Rt. 133 at Rt. 114, North Andover. For more information contact Francyne Fuller at (508) 475-8186.

WOMEN OVER 40 SWAMPED

Outdoor Vacations for Women over 40 has scheduled a week-long vacation October 19-26 to the Okefenokee Swamp and Savannah, Georgia.

Highlights of the outdoor adventure include four days of canoeing and primitive camping in the swamp which is filled with peat-covered prairies, lakes, cypress bays, pine forests and wildlife. Then on to Savannah to enjoy its charm, history, exquisite gardens and 18th and 19th century architecture.

Inquiry deadline for this unique vacation is August 19. For more information, please contact Marion Stoddart at (508) 448-3331 or write Outdoor Vacations, P.O. Box 200, Groton, MA 01450.

ANNUAL 10K ROAD RACE IN MALDEN

The Malden Irish American Club will hold their Annual 10K Road Race on Labor Day, Monday, September 2, at 11 a.m., to benefit the American Lung Association of Middlesex County. (Registration will begin at 9 a.m.)

"I've seen the work the Lung Association does, especially to fight air pollution. Even our running leprechaun has his pipe turned upside down because he's not smoking," said Bill Kelly, an Irish American Club officer.

Jack Green, a Senior Vice President of Converse Inc., not only serves on the Lung Association's Board of Directors, but will participate in the race. "Converse is pleased to be a sponsor of this exciting and very worthwhile event."

Over 800 runners are expected to run on Labor Day as the race winds its way through the neighborhoods of Malden and ends at the Irish American Club on West Street.

The first 600 registered runners will get official race T-shirts. Immediately following the race, prizes will be awarded for winners in all classes. The Irish American Club will host their annual open house with Irish music provided by the Andy Healy Band. "We can't thank the Irish American Club enough for their enthusiasm and support," says Mark W. Mulligan, Executive Director, American Lung Association of Middlesex County.

For race registration forms and race information, contact Ed Norton, Irish American Club at (617) 321-7720.

SOUTH SEAS SUBJECT OF SALEM LECTURE

Field research is one of the cornerstones of the scholarly examination of patterns of cultural continuity and change. As part of the fulfillment of its mission to keep abreast of such change in its areas of interest, in the 1950s and 60s, the Peabody Museum of Salem sponsored a number of expeditions to the South Pacific, the islands of Melanesia, and the Indonesian archipelago. Dr. Donald Marshall, a veteran of six such trips, traces the history of these excursions in a lecture on Tuesday, August 13, at 12 noon. There is no charge beyond admission for the lecture.

Included in Dr. Marshall's discussion will be excursions by yachtsman William Robinson aboard the Varua. Artifacts, photographs, and written documents from the various expeditions will be highlighted for their contribution to the understanding of the cultural changes in the areas visited.

For information about this program or the museum, please call (508) 745-1876.

SINGLES DANCES IN TEWKSBURY

Parents Without Partners, Minuteman Chapter #817 is sponsoring Singles Dances on August 17 and August 24 (August 24 will benefit Muscular Dystrophy-Jerry's Kids).

The dances are held at the K of C Hall, 2068 Main Street, Rte. 38, Tewksbury from 8 p.m to midnight. The admission is $5.

For more information call (508) 667-6834.

STORYTELLER JENNIFER SMITH AT BPL

The Boston Public Library's long-standing tradition of formal story-telling will be renewed August 15th with the Magic Circle's presentation of "Improbable People, Impossible Things" in the Children's Room of the Central Library in Copley Square.

Well-known storyteller Jennifer Smith of Belmont will draw on folk traditions of Hungary, Korea, West Africa, Zanzibar, Greece, and England as well as Appalachian, African-American and Native American traditions during her performance to inspire children to let their imaginations soar and create worlds of their own.

A professional storyteller, Ms. Smith brings to her work many years' experience as teacher and performer. She holds a Master's Degree in Comparative Literature from Oxford University and has taught at every age level from college literature and adult education courses down to elementary and preschool classes. For several years she was the Children's Book review editor for the Christian Science Monitor and wrote a monthly column on books for children.

Recognizing the power of stories to enthrall children and adults alike and to stimulate love of reading, the Boston Public Library first introduced the art of formal storytelling at the Central Library in Copley Square in 1902 with the first appearance of Marie Shedlock, a celebrated European story-teller who was described as "the English interpreter of Hans Christian Andersen," as well as "the Fairy Godmother."

The 3 p.m. program, which is free and open to the public, has been especially created for the Boston Public Library and is intended for children five years of age and older. Pre-registrations is not required but seating is limited. For additional information, please contact the Children's Room of the Boston Public Library at (617) 536-5400, Ext. 328.

NORTHSHORE SHOPPING CENTER ANNOUNCES "GET THE LOOKS, WIN THE BOOKS"

Northshore Shopping Center will give away two 32-volume sets of the New Encyclopedia Britannica with distinctive Heirloom Binding, as part of their "Get the Looks, Win the Books," back-to-school promotion.

This promotion is an important component of "Helping Youth to a Higher Degree," the mall's year-round program which promotes educational events and opportunities.

Throughout the month of August, shoppers can register to win the encyclopedias, valued at over $2,000 per set at the mall's information booth or at any participating mall store. Deadline to register for the giveaway is Wednesday, August 28. No purchase is necessary.

Two sets of the Heirloom Edition will be awarded, one for the winner to keep and the second to be donated to the local school of his/her choice.

Northshore Shopping Center is located at the Junction of Routes 114 & 128 in Peabody.

For more information, please call the mall office at (508) 531-3440 and ask for Victoria Cerulle, Assistant Manager.

SAFETY TOWN STILL HAS OPENINGS

Openings remain for youngsters to participate in Burlington Mall's 21st Annual Safety Town Program, to be conducted in the mall parking area, near Sears Auto Center, August 12-16 and August 19-23.

Safety Town is a child-sized town, complete with buildings, crosswalks, street signs and traffic signals, where children entering kindergarten and first grade this fall are taught bicycle, auto, school bus and pedestrian safety in a controlled traffic situation.

During the Safety Town class, supervised by Safety Office Russell Petersen of the Burlington Police Department, children will learn how to conduct themselves in traffic situations and the correct way to get on and off a school bus. Children completing the one-hour class will be presented with diplomas and safety booklets.

Safety Town is free and consists of a single one-hour class. Classes are scheduled at 10 and 11 a.m., August 12-16 and August 19-23. The class is open to all area children, who will enter kindergarten or first grade this September. Class size is limited and students are accepted on a first-come, first-served, pre-registration basis.

Parents who wish to register their children in a free class are asked to call the Burlington Mall Office at 272-8667 or 272-5833, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., as soon as possible.

Lancaster County, Pa.

A musical summer getaway

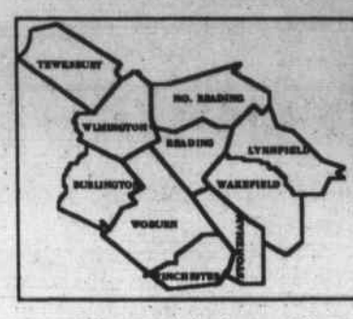

Swing to the Big Band sounds under the summer stars, unleash your polka as a German band plays or tap a tune of old-fashioned bluegrass. A summer getaway in Lancaster County means miles of scenic Amish farmlands, sweet summer produce and special musical events!

Saturday evenings are extra special at the Nissley Vineyard, located among the rural beauty of northwestern Lancaster County. Each Saturday from July 6 to August 31, locals and visitors alike pack a blanket, a few lawn chairs and picnic goodies, while Nissley supplies the wine and the sounds of jazz, from big bands to swing. A grassy knoll under the stars provides the audience a cool respite, while the dance floor fills with the merry swinging of jazz enthusiasts. Nissley Vineyards is open for wine tastings throughout the year as well; contact them at (717) 426-3514.

A micro-brewery in Lancaster County? Yes, indeed, and the Stoudt Brewing Company is the only micro-brewery in all of Pennsylvania. Each summer, the Stoudts provide patrons an excellent opportunity to sample the lagers, pilsners and bocks at the annual "Bavarian Beer Fest," held through September 1, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays at Stoudt's Brewery. Dance to the live sounds of the hottest German-American bands from the region, and enjoy sing-alongs and plenty of German foods. Contact the Stoudt's Brewery and Black Angus at (215) 484-4387.

Cool off during the dog days of summer with a breeze from the past - it's the fifth annual "Old Time Music Festival," held at the Folk Craft Center & Museum, located east of Lancaster in Smoketown. On Sunday, August 5, the area's most energetic country musicians will demonstrate stylistic specialties such as fiddle music, Pennsylvania bluegrass, western swing and a bit of gospel. Later, test your rhythm by doing a little clogging and square dancing. It's a family day full of fun and music. Call the Folk Craft Museum at (717) 397-3609 for complete details.

A complete calendar of events for summer 1991 and the free Map & Visitors Guide to Lancaster County can be had by calling 1-800-735-2629, Ext. 2328, or write to the Pennsylvania Dutch Conventions & Visitors Bureau, Dept. 2328, 501 Greenfield Road, Lancaster, PA 17601.

School notes

by phyllis nissen

—After cutting the positions of directors of special education, reading, athletics, and performing and fine arts, the Wilmington School Committee reinstated them, reasoning that it would be more costly to hire replacements to do the work now being done.

The sub-committee recommending the reinstatements also recommended that all directors except special needs teach two classes. The original intention had been to cut directors so they could teach the classes of teachers being laid off.

According to the Wilmington Town Crier, directors are at the top of the salary scale; not so, a number of riffed teachers.

---The new officers of the Wakefield Music Boosters are: Co-Presidents Carol Manthy and Judy Beers, Vice President Russ Manthy, Co-Treasurers Joyce and Bernie Delorey, Recording Secretary Susan Feerick, and Corresponding Secretary Cathy Lyons.

Their immediate marching orders include raising funds for uniforms and other activities via candy and ad sales.

—Although income increased by 6.8 percent and expenses, including labor, by only 5.9 percent, the Lynnfield school lunch program was expected to end the year approximately $4,000 in the soup.

Lunch prices, however, will remain the same when school opens although the self-sustaining program, relying solely on income from students and government subsidies, will probably see a rise in prices some time later in September.

Last year's deficit which began at $13,000 and decreased to just about $2,700 occurred in part because of expenses related to kitchen equipment maintenance and one-time benefits for a retiring employee.

—"You're taking a courageous stand, putting yourself on the line," says Reading Teachers Association President Peter Greene, in a recent Reading edition of the Daily Times Chronicle, to the Reading School Committee. "I urge you to do that."

The committee voted 3-2 last week to make no further cuts in its bare bones FY '92 budget and to address a $390,000 shortfall by deferring a portion of teacher salaries to the next fiscal year.

At its September 26th special session, Town Meeting can reject the School Committee's "calculated risk" and almost desperate attempt to buy time, resulting in cuts having to be made in October, already into the school year.

According to the Chronicle, the teacher salary deferral was put into place by the State Legislature to allow communities to soften the blow of local aid cutbacks by deferring as much as one-twelfth of FY '92 teacher salaries to FY '93, enabling that money to be used to address shortfalls caused by local aid cuts.

In another attempt to bring budget matters under control, the committee also eliminated all high school busing.

demonstration of how to use the library's computerized catalog system and a detailed explanation on research techniques. Advanced registration is required.

The Life Long Learning program continues on the 19th with "The Pleasures of Herbs." Diane Watkins, herbalist and owner of "From the Heart" in West Newbury will demonstrate on the practical and creative use of herbs. Dried and fresh herbs will be used in the creation of herb jellies, teas and an herbal topiary. This program is sponsored in conjunction with the Merrimack Valley Herb Society.

To conclude September's program, Northern Essex Director of Nursing Education, Dolores Haritos, will present "Sentimental Women Need Not Apply: A History of the American Nurse," a movie which provides an illuminating analysis of the nursing profession between 1873 and 1973. This topic also invites inquiry into women's history, cultural archetypes, the practiced and effects of institutionalized racism and sexism, and society's deepest understanding of caring and service. The movie will be presented at 2 p.m. in the Projection Room, building E-155.

The Life Long Learning Program is a series of lectures, day trips and tours designed for senior citizens, but open to everyone. Unless otherwise stated, all events take place in the Northern Essex Community College Library Conference Center in Haverhill on Thursday's at 2 p.m. For more information, or to receive a free brochure, contact the Life Long Learning Hot Line, (508) 374-3688.

Physicians join Health Center

The Regional Health Center in Wilmington welcomes three new physicians who will join the center's Internal Medicine practice with Drs. Britt, Stotsky and Rubrake. With the addition of these full time physicians, the Center's Internal Medicine services now has six physicians.

Scott B. Chelemer, M.D. is an Internal Medicine physician who completed his residency and internship at New England Deaconess Hospital, Boston. He attended Cornell University, Ithaca, New York and received his medical degree from University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, in 1988.

Another recent staff member is Mitchell L. Kase, M.D., who recently completed his residency in Internal Medicine at Montefiore Medical Center.

All of the Regional Health Center physicians are members of the medical staff at Winchester Hospital and can provide their patients with the full resources of the hospital, as needed. They are now accepting new patients and may be reached at the Regional health Center in Wilmington by calling (508) 657-3910.

Woodchips

ANTHONY MANCONI

If Faneuil Hall in Boston is the "Cradle of Liberty" then The Chelsea Produce Center must be the "Bread Basket" of New England. On my weekly visit there, I see fruits and vegetable that come from almost every state and from many countries. Seeing the points of origin on the boxes and crates is like a National Geographic's world tour -- pineapples from Hawaii, grapes from Chile, bananas from Costa Rica, tomatoes from Florida, plums from California, apples from Washington State, mushrooms from Pennsylvania, potatoes rom Maine and Canada, watermelons from Georgia, etc.

Many of my relatives and friends are in the wholesale business there. They are also from the Middlesex East area and I'm happy to say "they are fans of Woodchips." Some of them are Dick Fopiano of Stoneham, Paul Tosto, Medford, John Tampone, Lynnfield; Mario Cutone and sons, Robert and Steve from Arlington, Gus and Pat Strangie from North Reading, Armando Sarno and son Ralph and daughter Sue Murphy of Woburn, Donald Lee of Tewksbury, Donald and Diane Bicchieri from Medford, Harvey Alto of Nova Scotia, Richard Testa, Medford, Phil DiNapolia and son Ralph from Reading, Aldo and Rosemary Balurdi of Arlington, Jamie KilBride, Woburn, Kevin Murphy, Medford and Joe Masello, Concord.

My Aunt Nora said, "No wonder you feel right at home there. You are a 'tutti fruiti' yourself!" I don't mind what my Aunt Nora tells me because I was told that the poor woman fell out of the cradle when she was a baby. Incidentally, her car was stolen last night. The police sent out an all points bulletin, "Attention all cars, be on the look-out for a 1929 Essex." Residents of Wilmington, don't be surprised to see an 85-year-old (spring chicken) pedalling a bicycle heading for my house. "Stop Her!"

The doctor gave Johnny Ave a prescription for losing weight. Stephen Rappa at the Revere Pharmacy gave him a large jar containing 5,000 tablets. Johnny called the doctor and said, "How many of those darn things do I take a day?" "None," the doctor replied. You empty the jar of pills on the floor every morning, then pick each one up and put it back into the jar." So far Johnny lost 34 pills under the bathtub.

A dapper looking gentleman introduced himself to an attractive woman at a senior-citizen dance. "You look like my third wife," he told her. "Oh, how nice," she said.

"And how many times have you been married?" "Twice," he said with a twinkle in his eye.

Kathy told the members of the Gossip Hunters Club, "Tomorrow is the Woodchipper's birthday." "What are you getting for him?" one asked. Kathy smiled and said, "Make me an offer!"

Dennis Tully wrote this note to his grandmother, "Dear Granny, I'm sorry that I forgot your birthday last week. It would serve me right if you forgot my birthday next Saturday." An educational puzzle, "Why do we pay more to pour concrete than we pay school teachers to mold minds?"

It takes a child about two years to learn how to talk and a man 50 years to learn to keep his mouth shut. "There's an old Spinning wheel in the parlor - spinning dreams of the long, long ago..." Well folks, there aren't many little old ladies sitting anywhere near any spinning wheels in their parlors but there are quite a few standing in front of spinning wheels in Las Vegas.

My Cousin Angelo Quagenti told me that his boss is a kind, understanding man. Angelo said, "He called me into his office last week and said, 'Son, I don't know how we're going to get along without you, but starting Monday we're going to try'!"

Many senior citizens can tell you that the following is true - one of the greatest miracles of today's medications is being able to get the darn bottles open. Uncle John entered a night club with a beautiful young blonde on his arm. He turned up his pacemaker and they started to dance. The band played a lively tune so Uncle John turned up the pacemaker again. Then the band really started rocking and rolling playing a fast disco number and suddenly Uncle John slumped to the floor. "Want me to call a doctor?" a waiter asked. "No," the blonde bombshell said "call the service station down the street, I'm sure we can jumpstart him."

Bobby Burns' psychiatrist said to him, "I congratulate you on the wonderful progress you're making." "You call this progress? Four months ago I was Napoleon, today I'm nobody." Molly O'Hara said to her grandfather, "Are you still growing?" "Why do you ask?" Eddie O'Hara said. "Well," Molly replied, "the top of your head is coming through your hair."

Movie Reviews — Rochelle Flynn

"Hot Shots" Short Takes

"Hot Shots" Charlie Sheen, Cary Elwes, Valeria Golino, Lloyd Bridges. Directed by Jim Abrahams. Produced by Bill Badalato. Written by Abrahams, Pat Proft.

Flyboys have always had a certain bravura in the movies. They swagger, they party hard and those who don't win their battles are expected to die with dignity. Well, "Hot Shots" knocks all the hot air out of that legend, as this flick is a cross between "Airplane" and "Top Gun."

Parodies tend to wear thin after the first 20 minutes or so, but this comedy is well-paced, cleverly written and full of enough surprises to hold up until the end. Charlie Sheen plays Topper, a rebellious pilot who can't live down the disgrace of his father, a pilot who caused the death of another flyboy 20 years earlier. Topper, who is charismatic and well-intentioned, is also wired a little too tightly. His tendency to lose control makes him the pawn of unscrupulous industrialists who hope to sabotage Navy equipment in order to sell the government their own planes.

The plot is not as important to the story as the characters and the sight gags. Co-written and directed by Jim Abrahams, of "Airplane!," "Top Secret" and "Naked Gun" fame, this guy knows the genre. With one exception, he successfully makes fun of everything from "Dances with Wolves" to the concept of military intelligence - and everything else that stands in his way. The only time Abrahams fails is in a drawn-out parody of romantic moments in famous films.

Sheen is far better in a comedic role than you'd expect and the supporting cast is just fab. Jon Cryer does a great bit as a flyer with Walleye vision and Cary Elwes is nasty and aloof as the best dressed, most culinary of the airmen. But is is Lloyd Bridges who steals the show with his deadpan delivery. He plays an admiral who has been literally shot to bits and is pretty much a goofball because of all the replacement parts. He is, of course, in charge of a top secret, highly dangerous mission that he can barely comprehend.

The one offensive aspect of this film is all the anti-arab sentiment. The Arabs, all a bumbling lot, are treated much as filmmakers portrayed Russians and American Indians in the past. This entertaining film would have been just as funny with out the racism. Rated PG-13.

The Doctor showcases the fine talents of William Hurt, Elizabeth Perkins and Christine Lahti, but the plot is sketchy at best. Hurt plays a callous doctor who learns compassion from his illness. Still, the film has a powerful impact, thanks to director Randa Haines and a top-notch cast. A must for all first-year residents. Rated PG-13. ***

Doc Hollywood is a charming movie in which Michael J. Fox is sidetracked in a tiny Southern town while speeding across the country to a shallow, but lucrative job, as a plastic surgeon in L.A. It's all very much like a Frank Capra comedy, only with a less clever script. But the acting and the direction make up for the plot's predictability. Fluffy, romantic comedies are seldom this much fun. Rated PG-13. ***

Mobsters is a silly piece of work in which gangsters-in-training are elevated to some mythical, idealized state. The leading actors give lousy performances and the film is stiffly directed. About the only thing going for it is an interesting supporting cast and some great set designs. Rated R. *

V.I Warshawski is so disappointing it practically slaps you in the kisser. Talented, leggy Kathleen Turner is both rugged and believable as novelist Sara Paretsky's independent, feminist private detective. But the plot could have been culled from any of a dozen made-for-TV movies. The story is also as choppily edited and as bland as anything on the small screen. Rated R. **

101 Dalmatians stars Cruella De Vil, that sweeping, swirling, chain-smoking villainess whose just dying for a spotted fur coat. Campy and witty, this film hasn't aged a bit in 30 years and retains a distinctive look, even for Disney, as the animators outlined everything, even the backgrounds. Rated G ****

Straight Out of Brooklyn is young filmmaker Matty Rich's gritty, autobiographical look at what life is really like for a black family in New York's Red Hook housing projects. Raw and gritty, it aches with honesty and is an impressive, disturbing film from this first-time writer/director/producer/actor. Rated R.  1/2

The Miracle is an amusing, unusual story of two teenagers who wander through their Irish seaside town making up stories about its inhabitants and visitors. When the two meet a mysterious blonde (Beverly D'Angelo) their fantasy world collides with a reality harsher than either could have imagined. The acting is superb and the language is even better, but the plot is a bit far-fetched. Unrated. ***

Another You painfully pairs Richard Pryor and Gene Wilder in a silly story of mistaken identity. The jokes are crude, the acting is lousy and the story makes little sense. This comedy is more likely to depress than amuse. Rated R. *

Bill and Ted's Bogus Journey reunites the goofy, but ultra cool duo of Keanu Reeves and Alex Winter. These two wannabe rock-n-roll musicians do more than trip through time in this outing, they also travel through heaven, hell and several dimensions in between. As silly, and as endearing, as the original, but with much better production values. Rated PG. ***

Regarding Henry is a disappointing outing for Harrison Ford, who plays a snarly lawyer reduced to puppy dog sweetness after suffering a head injury. Directed by a Mike Nichols, who seems to have lost his cynical edge, this sanitized, sentimental film is too good to be true, or honest, or believable. Rate PG-13. **

Point Break is an action-adventure surfing movie starring Keanu Reeves and Patrick Swayze that has a totally ridiculous plot but some fabulous action scenes. Reeves plays an F.B.I. agent out to nab a bunch of bank robbers who use the money to travel around the world in pursuit of an endless summer. Yes, it's as mindless as it sounds, but it sure looks nice. Rated R. * 1/2

DR. BENJAMIN STONE (Michael J. Fox) comes calling on Lou (Julie Warner) in Warner Bros' romantic comedy," Doc Hollywood," buddy how he expected us to sit through three and a half hours of that abomination.

Roving

From S-1

"I'm used to it," he actually told us. How could any human being in the nineteen-nineties get used to watching a tv set like that?

You've got to understand that our buddy is not poverty-stricken. This guy is a workaholic and he has more money in the bank than Saint Peter. So the next logical question was, "Why the heck don't you go over to Fretter's and buy yourself a new tv?"

You won't believe our buddy's answer, but we're going to tell you anyway. "I'm afraid to go out and buy a new tv set," he told us.

"You're afraid?" we retorted. Afraid of what? There aren't any seven foot, hairy monsters with fangs hanging around Fretter's parking lot, we informed him.

"That's not what I mean by afraid," he said.

So explain what you mean, we insisted. What, pray tell, could scare anybody into putting up with a black and white television set with a picture that resembles something out of an Andy Warhol collage.

"It all started when my wife left me," she took the color tv with her."

Big deal; three-quarters of the guys in the world had their wives leave them and take the tv sets with the rest of the property settlement. "So why didn't you, just go buy a new tv set then?" we asked. The question was way too simple; it didn't deserve the response it got.

"I did go out and buy a new set," he said. ""But then I got involved with another woman, and when she and I broke up a couple of years later, she took the tv set with her."

We found it necessary to suck down another beer real fast, otherwise, we wouldn't have been able to deal with listening to the rest of this story. You might want to consider the same.

""Why did you allow your girl friend to take the tv set with her?" we wanted to know.

"Well," our great and good buddy said, "she didn't have one of her own, since she'd been living with me most of the time we were together. I felt sorry for her, so I told her she could have my tv set."

All right, my friend, why didn't you go out and buy another new tv set, to replace the one you stupidly gave away to your girl friend.

"I did," he told us. "I did go out and buy a third tv set. It was a beauty, too."

Naturally, we were all curious as to what became of the third television set.

"I'm embarrassed to tell you what happened," he said. "You remember that gorgeous brunette I dated for a year or so? Her name was Donna. Well, without offending anybody, this dark-haired, European beauty had one heck of a fiery temper. One night she got ticked off at me, and she threw the portable telephone through the picture tube. There went television set number three. There also went my dark-haired, European beauty."

Our buddy explained that it was necessary to replace the portable phone before he bought another tv set. We asked him, with a great deal of trepidation, if there had been a tv set number four.

He replied, "Oh, yes, I had a fourth television set. In fact, it was the nicest set of all. Except that I didn't own it. The set belonged to my next girl friend, who let me borrow an extra color tv set that she had kicking around her house. She didn't use it, and she felt sorry for me. That set hung around for about a year. Then we split up, and the rest is history. So went the girl friend and the fourth color television set."

"That's what I mean when I say I'm afraid to buy a new tv set," he explained. "You know that I've been seeing a new girl for a few months now. I'm afraid to buy a new tv set, because every time I do, I end up breaking up with my girl friend. In the process, I somehow manage to also lose the tv set."

We decided two things: first, that we needed another beer to help us digest what we'd just heard, and second, that our great and good buddy needed professional help.

"Therapy," we told him. "That's the only thing that will work now."

In the meantime, we settled for the old black and white tv set. It didn't matter much, anyway. The game turned out to be boring, and we were having too much fun drinking beer and laughing over our friend's dilemma. We shouldn't have been laughing, of course, but he was too darn funny not to. He did manage to make us feel sorry enough for him that, by the end of the first half, he had us convinced that we should take up a collection to go out and buy him a new tv.

We voted to have another beer and think about it.

BUSINESS

DO THIS FOR YOURSELF.

At Private Healthcare Systems Ltd., we believe that teamwork makes your work a lot more fun and effective. That's why, in our young and growing managed-care firm, we provide a friendly and professional environment where management and staff pull together in an effort to ensure high-quality, cost-effective medical care. And while we do this for the benefit of patients, hospitals, and insurance companies, joining us could be one of the best things you'll ever do for yourself.

Mailroom Assistant

You will be responsible for all incoming mail distribution, outgoing shipping and receiving, and operating and maintaining a mail meter. You will also assist the department with projects by photocopying and collating. Strong organizational skills are required; mailroom experience is preferred.

Come to PHCS and you will enjoy a great salary and benefits that respond to your needs, including 3 weeks' vacation, a dependent care savings plan, a nonsmoking office, on-site aerobics and much more. Do something great for yourself now—give us a call at (617) 861-5659, or send resume to Private Healthcare Systems Ltd., 20 Maguire Road, Lexington, MA 02173. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

Melrose Wakefield gets 3 year approval

The Cancer Care program at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital was recently granted a three-year approval by the Commission on Cancer of the American College of Surgeons. The approval is a "tremendous vote of confidence in the hospital's comprehensive program for the diagnosis and treatment of cancer and its medical professionals" said Richard S. Quinlan, MWH president and chief executive officer.

According to the American College of Surgeons, approval of the MWH cancer care program demonstrates to the community that the hospital has committed the resources and has made significant efforts to provide the best possible care. Melrose-Wakefield is one of a select few, comprised of approximately one-fifth of the more than 6,000 general/surgical hospitals in the United States and Puerto Rico, which have earned approval for their cancer programs.

The goal of the cancer program at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital, notes Quinlan, is to "provide our patients with specialized cancer care in a convenient community hospital setting, and to provide that care in a warm, compassionate, supportive way."

To earn approval of the College of Surgeons, the Melrose-Wakefield Hospital Oncology Program demonstrated all elements of a sophisticated cancer program:

1. A multi-disciplinary cancer committee which provides overall leadership of the program. This committee includes representatives from surgery, internal medicine, gynecology, pediatrics, diagnostic and therapeutic radiology, pathology and family practice, as well as administration, nursing, social services, rehabilitation services and the tumor registry.

2. A tumor registry with two years of patient data, and at least one year of successful patient follow-up.

3. Patient-oriented cancer conferences conducted weekly or monthly, depending on the number of cancer patients being treated.

4. Two patient care evaluation studies each year.

According to the standards of the College of Surgeons, the tumor registry is a key part of a successful cancer program. The registry lists all patients who are diagnosed or treated for cancer, helping the hospital to maintain contact with them and assure they receive continuing care and assistance with rehabilitation. Information collected through the in-hospital registry also allows MWH to participate in national studies designed to improve patient care.

The medical staff of the oncology program at MWH includes physicians who are board-certified in surgery, oncology and hematology. MWH oncologists and hematologists are Dr. Donna Barnard, Dr. Jason Mann, and Dr. Joseph L. Pennachio. The department's nurses Carol Lonergan, R.N., O.C.N. and Maureen Kelley, R.N., M.S., E.T., O.C.N., are certified in oncology nursing by the National Oncology Nurses Society.

Through its approval programs, the American College of Surgeons encourages participating hospitals to equip and staff themselves so that they are able to provide the best in diagnosis and treatment of cancer in its many forms.

Recognizing that cancer is a complex group of diseases, the approvals program promotes consultation among family physicians, surgeons, medical oncologists, radiation oncologists, diagnostic radiologists, pathologists and other cancer specialists. This multi-disciplinary cooperation improves patient care and makes the course of treatment more effective.

The American Cancer Society estimates that more than one million new cases of cancer will be diagnosed in the United States during 1991.

Serendipity opens in Andover

A new concept of recycling upscale designer clothing has been a real success in the down economy Massachusetts has been experiencing. Serendipity, located at 90 Main St. in Andover Center offers clothing with designer labels such as Liz Claiborne, Christian Dior and Polo at reduced prices. How about a 100% silk evening dress for only $30, or a child's sweater from Christian Dior for only $4? There's something for almost everyone at this unique shop.

Owned and managed by Joya Sideri along with her husband Warren, Andover residents for 30 years, Serendipity opened in April and is following the success of similar stores on Newbury Street in Boston and downtown Lexington.

"I'm constantly congratulated on the pleasant appearance of our shop and the high quality of our consignment items," says Joya. "People feel this is exactly what the area needs."

Serendipity accepts clothing, antiques, collectibles and jewelry for consignment by appointment. Mrs. Sideri prefers well-known name clothing, items that are not found in traditional second-hand stores. All clothing items must be in very good condition, cleaned, pressed and on hangers. The sale price will be determined by Mrs. Sideri.

Serendipity is open Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 9 a.m. to 12 noon Saturdays.

For information Joya can be called in Andover at 508-475-6456.
